ELECTRIC SERVICE HIT

Rain That Falls In Parts
Of County Fails To Relieve City

By International News Service
After the first restful night in a week, heat-whipped Ohioans awoke today refreshed but still in
for one more warm day before the torrid wave, which has gripped most of the nation for more than a week, comes to a definite end.

By nightfall, however, forecasters predicted that a cool mass of air moving down from the Dakotas and Minnesota would cover the entire midwest thus bringing to an end a heat wave which has taken at least 137 lives in the nation plus 144 others from drownings.

The forecast for Ohio today called for occasional showers and not so warm but weather observers indicated that the mercury would still be above normal and that the humidity would be high.
After the mercury had climbed near the 100-degree mark in most sections of the state yesterday, a terrific mid-afternoon electrical and rain storm brought relief to sweating cities and parched farm lands. Within two hours and a half, the mercury dropped more than 20 degrees as a strong wind swept the much-needed rain along.

Columbus Hit

Rainfall in downtown Columbus totaled 1.15 inches during the two-hour storm while at Port Columbus a cloudburst fall of 2.64 inches was reported. Damage was heavy throughout the city.

In the northern part of the state, electrical service was cut off in a number of cities when lightning struck poles or proved too great a load to the lines.

Temperatures throughout the state ranged in the low and middle seventies this morning. Columbus and Cambridge reported the lowest with a reading of 72
while Hayesville was one degree higher. Other readings included:
Akron, 74; Dayton and Cleveland
76 and Cincinnati 77.

Circleville temperatures went up to 95 degrees at noon Wednesday

Educators Fix $111,829 As Budget for 1941-42

Taxes To Provide $58,494 Under Program; Coal Boost Reported; Janitors Hired

Circleville Board of Education, Wednesday, submitted its budget for the 1941-42 school year to Auditor Forrest Short, estimating that $111,829 will be required for school operation during the nine month period.

Of the total amount $58,494 will be requested from county funds,

$50,000 being estimated as the city's receipts from the School Foundation Fund provided by the state, with other minor items being listed during the year, including money from interest on deposits and other miscellaneous sources.

The budget compares favorably with that set up a year ago when $108,820.83 was requested.

Rising cost of school operation was disclosed when the board ordered five carloads of coal at $1 a ton more than was paid last year.

The resignation of Virgil M. Cress as high school teacher of commercial subjects was accepted, but no action was taken concerning employment of a successor. Mr. Cress has taken employment with the Ralston-Purina Co.

School janitors were elected, including Roy Stout, high school; Lewis Lockard, new addition; Ronald Nau, Corwin; William Niles, High Street; George Milligan, Franklin; Ralph Ward, Walnut, and Mrs. Roy Stout, to assist in sweeping the high school during school months.

George C. Marion was reelected as attendance officer.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley said Senate consideration of the controversial bill probably will result in a full dress debate on international affairs, and another test of support of the administration's foreign policy. He predicted passage by Friday or Saturday night, however.

"The crisis with Japan undoubtedly will increase support for the bill, and bring it to a speedy vote," Barkley said.

RETAILERS TO DECORATE WITH USUAL SHOW COLOR

Retail Merchants at a meeting Tuesday night voted to use the conventional yellow and black Pumpkin Show colors again this year. A proposal to add the National colors to the regular Pumpkin Show colors was introduced, but failed to meet the approval of the merchants.

HOPKINS FLIES TO MOSCOW FOR STUDY OF WAR

F. D. R.'s Lend-Lease Aide

Washington Indicates Envoy
Will File Report With
The President

By International News Service
Arrival of Harry Hopkins, United States lend-lease administrator, in Moscow was announced in the Soviet capital today. Hopkins has been in London, and took off from there during the night.

He was accompanied by Brigadier General Joseph T. McCarney of the United States Army and Lieutenant John R. Allison of the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Hopkins recently reached London after crossing the Atlantic aboard a bomber from the United States. He discussed questions relating to the aid-Britain program with officials of the British government.

It was believed his discussions with authorities in Moscow would cover the question of American material aid to the USSR in its fight against Germany.

WASHINGTON, July 30—Government officials today took the view that the sudden Moscow trip of Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator, was ordered by President Roosevelt so that his most trusted adviser could return with a first-hand report on the Russian war effort.

There was also considerable disposition toward the belief that the trip was also arranged for any possible upward effect it might have on Soviet morale. Washington officials were inclined to believe that Hopkins' mission would have little to do with lend-lease aid inasmuch as the Russians have already given this government their requirements in this particular.

WOMAN STUFFS MAN'S BODY IN WIERTON SEWER

STEBENVILLE, July 30—Mrs. Genovia Magnone, 43, today faced a charge of murder for the death of her husband, Marco, 47, whose body was found stuffed into a sewer 200 feet from their home in Wierton, W. Va.

According to Sheriff Richard Wright of Hancock County, W. Va. the woman confessed she shot her mate while he slept and then carried his body to the sewer.

She later produced the gun she used, Wright said.

Saboteur At St. Johns Proves to Be Tomcat

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 30—The dread cry—"sabotage!"—leaped from lip to lip today as the industrial life of St. Johns slowed... halted... died.

Not since the sacking of the Newfoundland capital by French troops nearly 300 years ago had such a desolate silence settled over every part of the city.

Slapping factory belts were made idle. Workmen stood bewildered, non-productive, before workbench and lathe.

Whirling spindles looked like a motionless merry-go-round. Trolley cars stopped in mid-journey all over town.

The bustle along waterfront docks slowed to nothing. Lights went out in offices. Linotypes stopped their clatter, heavy presses their rumble, in newspaper plants.

Industrially, St. Johns had been stricken lifeless by short-circuiting of the entire city's power and light system.

And through the community, borne as though by a prairie fire, ran the cry, "Sabotage—Fifth columnists!"

Repair crews hustled about the city from point to point seeking the trouble. They found it—found that only one out of nine lives had been lost.

High on a light pole, stretched lifeless across two high-tension wires, lay a tomcat, his death responsible for the short-circuit.

But before he was found, before repairs were made, several hours elapsed. And in the interim, St. Johns was a city industrially dead.

Russian Counter Drive Predicted

Germans Reported Dislodged From Positions
In Smolensk Area; Set-Back Claimed

MOSCOW, July 30—Through a series of heavy counter-attacks, Soviet forces were claimed today to have "dislodged" the Germans from their positions on the Smolensk sector of the front facing Moscow.

In one of history's most violent battles, the latest Soviet high command announcement indicated, the German drive on the Russian capital had received a serious set-back.

(British military authorities said they felt the Russian counter-attacks in the Smolensk region may be the initial stages of a large-scale Soviet counter-offensive. They declared there was no evidence of any new German advance except in the Zhitomir area of the Ukraine, where the Germans are aiming their drive against Kiev.)

The war communique told of heavy fighting in the Smolensk and Zhitomir areas and said fighting was particularly heavy in the direction of Smolensk, "where Soviet counter-attacks dislodged enemy units."

Accompanying this announcement was a statement by Vice Foreign Commissar S. A. Lovzovsky that the German advance on the whole front now has been "checked."

On the southern front Marshal Semyon Budenny's armies in the Ukraine also were reported developing a counter-drive similar to that on the central front.

The Moscow newspaper Pravda reported that Budenny watched his troops, after a three-day march, counter-attack and recapture a Ukrainian railway station.

Leningrad Being Hit By Big Guns

BERLIN, July 30 — German long-range guns were reported bombarding the outskirts of Leningrad today as Nazi military officials announced repulse of Soviet counter-attacks aimed at rescuing huge Red army forces trapped east of Smolensk.

There were no details of the bombardment, but military reports said that "Big Berthas" for the first time had been brought within range and opened up on the one-time capital of the Czars.

Northeast of Smolensk, Panzer and other motorized units were said to be pushing toward Moscow as the main German segments were engaged in bitter "annihilation" battles far behind. Berlin spokesmen hinted at some "staggering" announcement to be made over the week end, expected to afford a panoramic view of the greatest battle of the ages.

TERMS OF NAZI PEACE RUMORED IN TURK CIRCLE

LONDON, July 30—The London Daily Mail reported from Istanbul today that German embassy circles, in an effort to win Turkish support, have revealed the terms of a new peace plan which is expected to be launched even if the Nazis are only partially successful against the USSR.

According to the report, the terms would liberate Belgium, Holland and Norway entirely from Germany and make them zones of exclusive British interest.

The British Empire would be left entirely untouched and the Czech and Polish states would be reconstituted, with the Germans retaining only Poland's industrial area. The Ukraine would become autonomous but would be incorporated in the German economic system.

In exchange, according to the dispatch, Germany asks only British and American recognition of Chancellor Hitler's "new order" in Europe.

The Mail said the Turks were impressed but not as the Germans intended. The Turks were said to have pointed out that if Germany feels constrained to give up practically everything she has gained, "then her situation is more desperate than was suspected."

European Bulletins

BERLIN—A total of 9,120 Soviet planes has been destroyed since outbreak of Russo-German hostilities, it was announced today.

LONDON—British authorities declared today there is no truth in rumors that 20,000 American soldiers already are in Egypt.

The only American service personnel in Egypt are a few military observers, it was stated.

BERLIN—The high command announced today that a German plane sank a 6,000-ton merchant ship near the mouth of the Tyne in England while other Luftwaffe machines effectively attacked an airport in the English midlands, shooting down one RAF plane.

LONDON—The London Daily Sketch today quoted the Sydney, Australia, Daily Mirror as reporting without confirmation that British authorities at Singapore produced an initial agreement with Thailand relating to naval and air bases. Authoritative quarters in London, however, branded this report a "complete phoney" and a "clever piece of Japanese-inspired propaganda."

LONDON—German long-range "Big Berthas" fired across the straits of Dover just before dawn today but failed to cause casualties or damage. The cannonade was brief and apparently aimed at shipping in the straits. Meanwhile, it was believed that British bombers attacked northern France during the night.

NEW YORK—The London radio, in a broadcast heard today by NBC, quoted Germany as claiming that Moscow was raided again last night. No further details were given.

$7,748 YEAR FOR U. S. PILOTS HIT BY FEW BRITONS

LONDON, July 30—The allegedly excessive salary of 1,937 pounds sterling (approximately $7,748) a year being paid to 162 American pilots now serving with the British Air Transport Auxiliary Service was sharply criticized by several members in the House of Commons today.

Lieut. Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, speaking for the government, defended the rate of pay and declined to terminate existing agreements at an early date.

The American flyers, he said, are doing very great service for Britain, sometimes at less pay than they would be able to obtain in the United States.

GALBREATH TO STAY

CHILLICOTHE, July 30—Corporal R. L. Galbreath, slated to be transferred from the Chillicothe Highway Patrol station to Lorain, has been notified by headquarters in Columbus that he is to remain in command of the Chillicothe office. Patrolman J. G. Edie, Chillicothe patrolman, will be transferred to Portsmouth Friday.

Newspapers Continue Their Scathing Blasts At Washington

WASHINGTON, July 30—The United States today delivered a strong representation to Japan against the bombing of the U.S.S. Tutuila, a navy gunboat, damaged this morning during a Japanese air raid on Chungking.

The representations were made to Japanese Ambassador Admiral Nomura by acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles. Welles, after conferring by telephone with President Roosevelt, summoned the Japanese envoy at the State Department, and requested him to inform the Tokyo government of this nation's concern over the bombing of the American gunboat.

The American government made the representations within a few hours after receipt of an official message from the American embassy in Chungking concerning the bombing.

According to reports from the United States naval attaché at Chungking, the superstructure of the stern of the gunboat, assigned to the Yangtze River patrol, was bent when a Japanese air bomb struck near the vessel. An outboard motorboat lying near the Tutuila was shattered by another bomb. No injuries to American seamen were reported.

In announcing this government's swift action, Welles amplified on the reports, declaring that word had been received this morning that a flight of 26 Japanese bombers which were passing over Chungking had dropped bombs immediately near to the Tutuila and very near to American embassy property.

Welles emphasized that both the gunboat and the American embassy are located on the other side of the river from Chungking proper.

The bombing recalled the famed Panay "incident" which occurred in December, 1937. The American gunboat Panay, a river vessel

REICH IN DENIAL THAT FAMED ACE ENDED HIS LIFE

LONDON, July 30—Two British newspapers, the London Daily Telegraph and Daily Sketch, today published reports that German Air General Ernst Udet, famous German aviator and creator of the Nazi parachute troops, has committed suicide.

The reports said Udet took his life after Chancellor Hitler ordered him arrested because he opposed the German invasion of Russia.

(Editor's Note: A dispatch from Berlin said German military quarters flatly denied foreign rumors that Udet is dead. These circles said Udet is "continuing his usual technical and experimental operations.")

WOODRUFF LEAVES POST IN JACKSON TOWNSHIP

Two Jackson Township school faculty members handed their resignations to the Jackson board of education Tuesday night. They were C. S. Woodruff, 539 North Court Street, principal of the school, and Benjamin A. Bennett, 204 Town Street, science and industrial arts instructor. Offers of better positions elsewhere were responsible for the resignations.

Mr. Woodruff has been with Jackson Township school for the last five years. Besides serving as principal, he taught physical education, commerce and social science in the high school.

Mr. Bennett came to the school last year as science and industrial arts instructor.

Many Forms Of Competition To Prevail As Village Greets Visitors

AWARDS ARE LISTED

V. F. W. Band To Be There; Horses, Flowers, Floats To Be Shown

Scioto Township's annual homecoming, always attractive to many hundreds of central Ohioans, will open Friday and continue through Saturday with an impressive program arranged.

George Finch is president of the Homecoming committee and Ralph Francis is its secretary.

Numerous events are being planned by the Commercial Point residents.

Friday's competition includes pulling contests starting at 2 o'clock with cash prizes to be given to winners. Entertainment will be provided at the dance platform by Jimmy Rawlins' studios of Columbus at 4:30, and round and square dancing will begin at 7:30 to continue through the evening.

An art and flower show will be conducted, entries closing at 8 p. m. Friday. Articles shown in previous homecomings are not eligible to participate for prizes. Mrs. Ben Grace is in charge of this division of the event.

Saturday will be the big day of the celebration with a float and industrial parade scheduled at 10:30 a. m., with entries to be listed prior to 10 o'clock. A $27 prize will be given for the best float, $20 for second, $10 for third. Comics and decorated bicycles will also come in for their share of money.

A colt show will be enjoyed at 1 o'clock, with three classes provided and participation limited to Scioto Township. Accordion and other kinds of music will be provided at the dance platform starting at 3:30.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars band, directed by Fred Hines of Ashville, will be on hand all day Saturday. A concession midway will be provided, including ferris wheel and other forms of entertainment.

'HORSEPLAY' AT CAMP IS FATAL TO SOLDIER, 21

FORT DIX, N. J., July 30—Private Michael Clancy, of Buffalo, N. Y., was under arrest today pending an army investigation into the fatal shooting of Sergeant Frank J. Russo, 21, his hometown friend, during reported "horseplay" at the Fort Dix post.

Authorities said Russo encountered Clancy on sentry duty while inspecting the guard. The private playfully unholstered his .45 caliber automatic, it was said, and then Russo fell with mortal chest wounds even as a nearby soldier shouted: "Look out, the gun's loaded."

Clancy and Russo belonged to the same outfit—Company F, 147th Infantry, 44th Division—and had been close friends for many years, army officers said.

HIRING OF INSTRUCTOR FILLS WASHINGTON CORPS

Miss Carmonelle Collins of Wheelersburg, who was employed at Ashville last year, has been named by the Washington Township board of education to teach first grade. She will succeed Miss Ruth Kerr who has taken employment at Walnut School.

John Florence, Washington superintendent, said Wednesday that Miss Collins' employment completes the school's 1941-42 staff.

Ashville Children Play Role in Aluminum Drive

Ashville, Phone 79

We are giving below a list of the youngster defense workers, who in the last week have visited many homes, gathering aluminum pieces with fine success, having secured a great truck load of it. A couple of the leading workers were: Sue Nance, age 10, 180 pieces; Charles Messick, age 8, 131 pieces. Others of the working force were: Sarah Imier, Martha Curry, David Six, Loy Six, Bob Glick, Billie Glick, Evelyn Bevens, Max Marion, Jack Irwin, James Irwin, Mary Fudge, Dick Fudge, Carolyn Fudge, Bryan Grant, Buddy Nance, Neal Leatherwood, Gale Leatherwood, Bob Stough, Shirley Stough, Helen Irwin, Margaret Nance. A fine bunch of live workers these and in the near future an ice cream party is to be given for them as part pay for their splendid work. Mrs. Nance, their leader, told us.

The V. F. W., Fred Hines' band, will give no concert here Saturday evening, being in an engagement at the Marcy church social tomorrow, Thursday evening, and all day Saturday at the Commercial Point Home Coming. Our Fresh Air picture show will be at it again tomorrow evening.

Edwin Irwin has purchased from Mrs. Dora Baum her dwelling property on East Main Street. Possession given in the near future.

The prospective Ashville Athletic Club organization people will hold another meeting at the village council chamber, this Friday evening.

Rev. Fudge, wife and children, Carolyn, Mary and Dick are vacationing up in Michigan for a couple of weeks.

The local Crites Cannery began operations this afternoon starting on the corn pack.

Mrs. Ethel Fridley and Mrs. Harry Trego have returned home from their visit with Karl Kraft and family at Freeport, Ill. Mrs. Fridley and Mrs. Kraft are sisters, daughters of our S. C. Allison. Mr. Kraft is manager of a 5 and 10 cent store at the above named town. He has been connected with this line of work and merchandise for near twenty years, the start being at Columbus. His firm is now building for him a new and larger store room. He is a home youngster being graduated from the local high school in 1914, C. E. Staley, superintendent.

Mrs. Fred L. Thomas, the former Judith Schlegel, is here from

This Wednesday morning, the Misses Helen Bowers and Kathryn Baum, Mrs. Vera Tosca and children, Joan, Harold and Gene, left for Old Orchard, Maine, where they will spend the month of August, returning in time for school. Mr. Tosca is there as an instructor and manager of bowling.

Jack and Jim Irwin, sons of Ed and Mrs. Irwin, are visiting with their grandparents J. S. and Mrs. Irwin and E. J. Ladd at Leesburg, Ohio. . . . C. B. Morrison and wife of here, Robert Morrison, wife and little Miss Connie Jo of Columbus, have returned from their trip to Cortland, New York, where they were guests at the home of Bram and Mrs. Simpson, the son-in-law and daughter of the first named Morrisons. On the return part of the trip they took time out to visit for a short time with our Sam Hummel who is making his home at Montour, Falls, N. Y., with his son-in-law and daughter, the Wrights. Mr. Hummel would be pleased to come back home for a visit, but is too feeble to endure the trip, having been stricken with paralysis within the past year. He is near 87 years of age.

GRASSHOPPERS CAUSE DAMAGE IN COUNTY AREA

Grass hoppers are causing considerable damage in the county, County Agent F. K. Blair reported Wednesday.

The insects attack green leaves and plants and are particularly destructive during hot dry weather, the county agent said. Farmers may combat grasshoppers by spreading a poison mash around the plants where the insects appear to be working.

To cover a half acre of ground, five pounds of bran may be added to ¼ pound of Paris green or white arsenic, plus a pint of syrup and three quarts of water.

Mix the Paris green and the bran dry. Stir the syrup into the water. Pour the sweetened liquid over the poisoned bran and mix thoroughly. Scatter the mixture thinly where the insects are feeding. Apply in the evening or

JACKSON CITES NEED FOR LONG ARMY TRAINING

112th Medical Regiment's Commander Says Nearly All Agree

COORDINATION IMPORTANT

Men Want To Return Home, But Admit Necessity Of Perfection

The need for additional army training for selectees, national guardsmen and reservists was stressed Tuesday by Colonel Harry D. Jackson, commanding officer of the 112th Medical Regiment training at Camp Shelby, as he prepared to return to camp after a furlough at his home here.

"As much as all of us would like to return home after a year in camp," Colonel Jackson said, "nearly all of us believe that additional training is imperative."

"It is easy to train a man as an individual in a year's time, but modern warfare is not conducted along lines of single units. The legions of Adolf Hitler have gained their victories through perfect coordination of all fighting forces, and not by the outstanding work of any individuals. That is the reason more training is necessary."

Colonel Jackson has headed the 112th Medical Regiment for 10 years after succeeding the late Colonel H. H. Snively.

"The boys naturally want to return home," he added, "but most of them know that our training as coordinated outfits has not been completed and cannot be completed for at least six months."

He spoke a word for Circleville boys who are training at Camp Shelby, when he said: "All of our boys are doing splendid work, and Circleville should be proud of the youths representing it at Shelby."

Colonel Jackson expressed the belief that it would be folly to muster out the troops now in training, declaring that a year's work would be wasted if such a step were taken.

Pickaway County Outdoors

Representatives from Pickaway County's 4-H Clubs will be among the older 4-H club members from all over the state to attend the annual 4-H conservation camp to be held August 10 to 15 at Camp Ohio. The local representatives still have not been selected.

The camp is under the supervision of W. H. Palmer, state club leaders, and R. D. Barden, Ohio State University specialist in agricultural engineering. It's five day program is devoted to a study of conservation of human and natural resources. The delegates, between the ages of 15 and 21, will be chosen because they have shown special aptitude or interest in these subjects.

G. W. McCullough, Minneapolis, wildlife technician, is the speaker Sunday evening and his talk provides a background for the specific topics to be discussed through the week. Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., Worthington, in talking Monday on human salvage, draws facts from long experience. Fred Sweet, editor, Mt. Gilead Union Register, discusses human resources Monday night.

The University agronomy department and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service have charge Tuesday and have arranged field trips to the E. H. Stradley and the A. R. Pound farms where erosion control practices are being successfully used. O. R. Keyser, Stark county agricultural agent, will show the motion picture he made and which he calls, "Saving the Soil for Son."

The importance of water in the conservation scheme will be called to the campers' attention Wednesday by Dr. Wilbur Stout, state geologist, and by Virgil Overholt, University specialist in agricultural engineering. The forests' part in saving water and preventing soil erosion while furnishing a farm income at the same time will be told Tuesday night by J. Alfred Hall, Columbus, director, Central State Forest Experiment Station.

Game and fish management are the topics handled by the Ohio Division of Conservation and Resources Thursday under the direction of A. W. Short, chief, game management section.

The club members themselves arrange the program Friday forenoon. Elective study courses in safe use of firearms, first aid, photography, nature study, archery, casting, and life saving will be taught by competent instructors each afternoon. The daily schedule also provides time for swimming, games, group singing, and vesper services.

STIMSON SORRY FOR HIS SLAP AT SEN. WHEELER

WASHINGTON, July 30—Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., leading non-interventionist, today had the apology of Secretary of War Stimson for charging the senator with deliberately circularizing soldiers against extension of the service of draftees.

In a formal statement late yesterday, Stimson expressed regrets for making the accusation and for declaring that Wheeler's activities were "near treason."

The fiery Montanan said that the war secretary's move was "a very decent thing for him to do." Stimson said in his statement, however, that several hundred of the circulars sent out by Wheeler reached soldiers instead of the three claimed by Wheeler. His statement follows:

"An inquiry now being made by the War Department of the post offices of the largest cantonments of the Army indicates that not three, but at least several hundred of the circulars sent out by Senator Wheeler did reach soldiers of the U. S. Army."

"The inquiry has also developed evidence of organized attempts by other persons to arouse disloyalty on the part of the soldiers in the cantonments toward the training plans of their officers. The danger to the National Defense of such attempts is obvious and will receive the careful attention of the department."

"On the basis of Senator Wheeler's statement in the Senate as to the time and methods of the issuance of his circular, I believe that he has shown the absence of any intent on his part to circularize the soldiers in the training camps."

82 NEW STATE LAWS IN FORCE IN NEXT MONTH

Marriage Health Action To Take Effect On August 18
OTHERS ARE DISCUSSED

All Walks Of Life Covered Be Legislation Voted By Assembly

Citizens of Circleville and Pickaway County will begin to feel the full impact of the 1941 legislative session in August when 82 new laws become effective.

There is no bride-to-be, no dentist, no pharmacist, no lawyer, and no milk dealer who will not be affected by the legislation.

Nor will there be any dealer in fake slugs for vending machines, or any banker, insurance man or coal dealer who can afford to ignore these new acts.

82 More Month Later

But in August the 82 statutes will begin to make themselves felt. They will be followed by 82 more in September, one more in October and two next January.

They are all part of 1,046 bills introduced in the ninety-fourth general assembly, of which 231 were passed and six were vetoed by Gov. John W. Bricker.

Of those passed, 123 originated in the House and 108 in the Senate. There were 666 introduced in the House and 350 thrown into the Senate's legislative hopper.

Of the 82 measures taking effect in August five become operative on the first day of the month.

Thereafter only 13 days out of the 31 in the month will pass without some new law taking effect and of these 13 five are Sundays when they couldn't legally become operative anyway.

The reason so many laws take effect so long after the adjournment of May 27 lies in a Constitutional provision that they become statutes 90 days after being signed by the governor.

License Bill Vital

Most noteworthy of the 82 bills, of course, is the marriage health action which becomes law on August 18. It requires physical examination of couples intending to wed in order to determine whether they have any social disease.

Incidentally this bill will boost the cost of marriage. At present, cupid's victims pay only $1 for a license. After August 18 the license and filing fee for medical certificates will be $2.

To this must be added the physician's fee, which is expected to be $3 to $5 a person, depending on how well the blushing couple know the "Doc."

Next in line are two house bills for control and licensing of milk dealers and distributors and specifying that milk must be retailed in gill, half-pint, pint, quart, two quart and gallon containers.

This second measure plainly states that each container must be filled at least to the base of its lip. Strict provisions for natural error are laid down.

Every motorist in the state will be affected by a measure permitting use of new license plates on March 1 and thereafter.

Coal dealers will come in for their share of attention with requirement that weight laws be enforced. Warehousemen and food dealers, after August 14, will be required to stamp on the containers the date when food is placed in storage.

Lawyers will be concerned with the establishment of a commission to set up rules of practice and procedure before all state boards, bureaus and commissions.

When it comes down to keeping people happy by giving them a full stomach, there are two bills becoming operative. One gives local governments power to issue tax anticipation notes in order to participate in the good stamp plan of the federal surplus commodities administration. The other extends certain laws to poor relief districts.

Bankers are affected by laws

She Marries

PRETTY Mary Kelly, a model, and Lieut. Milton F. Untermeyer Jr., son of the millionaire broker, were married at Fort Sill, Okla., where he is attending an officers' training school. Untermeyer Sr., recently was the victim of a stabbing during a party in his Kenelon, N. J., home. The bride is from Red Bank, N. J.

Building and apartment house owners are involved in provisions for only one means of egress of certain types of buildings as well as half a dozen measures relating to taxation.

Even the lowly newspaper man is given his share of consideration and comes off pretty well. After August 6 he may legally conceal his sources of information without subjecting himself to contempt of court proceedings for refusal to testify.

In this respect his relationships with sources of information are given the same status as exists between lawyer and client, physician and patient, or priest and parishoner.

Among the other measures taking effect are those dealing with inheritance taxes against people in other states, establishment of medical care plans, establishment of joint township hospitals, the practice of dentistry, college courses at Wilberforce university, loans and sizes of vehicles using the public highways, abolition of fireworks, sale of slugs that fit coin or vending machines, and dozens of others, not to mention revision of the fish and game laws and new statutes applying to fishing in Lake Erie, which every angler will want to know about.

And so it goes in Ohio, which was only one of 40 states that held legislative sessions in 1941 while the national congress was busy down in Washington.

SALVAGE DRIVE TO BE STARTED THROUGH STATE

COLUMBUS, July 30 — With the state's aluminum salvage drive completed, Ohioans today launched a three point program to aid defense by scrapping old automobiles and collecting scrap steel.

Representatives of scrap metal dealers from all quarters of the state met in Columbus with representatives of the federal government to formulate a definite program.

It is to begin with:

1. Scrapping of old automobiles, particularly those made before 1932.

2. Collection of old and disused farm machinery and all other forms of broken and useless scrap iron and steel found on farms.

3. A campaign among small industries to collect and market the scrap metal that has been lying about the premises for some time.

Unlike the aluminum campaign, the drive for scrap iron will be conducted only among those persons and places known to have scrap metal. The aluminum campaign embraced the entire public.

A preliminary meeting was held last week at which the Ohio Committee for Auto Wrecking was formed. Today's meeting was called for the purpose of getting action.

According to R. C. Allen, deputy chief of the office of production management, about 30,000,000 tons of scrap iron and steel are needed annually to keep the nation's production of ingots even with the 82,000,000 ton rate set during the first six months of 1941.

This means, he said, that scrap collections must be boosted at least 25 percent.

Edward A. France Jr., of the office of price administration, said a ceiling of $20 a ton for No. 1 heavy melting scrap delivered at Pittsburgh would be maintained.

Automobile scrap is generally regarded as No. 2 heavy melting, which means that the fenders and bodies must be pressed into bales and the frames cut up.

Those called to today's meeting included Nate Worshil of Canton; Joseph Silverstein, Carey; Ben Caplan, Cleveland; Louis Brandt, Columbus; Harry Kraner, Crestline; John Ponti, Dover; J. J. McGuire, Elyria; Joe Edelman, Lima; Ben Solomon, Toledo; R. S. Walters, Washington C. H.; Al Wiesner, Cincinnati and one representative of wrecking companies in Steubenville and Chillicothe.

Representatives of other groups are expected to be called later.

POLICE LOCATE AUTO USED FOR GIRL KIDNAPING

CELINA, July 30 — Police reported today that the car used in the kidnaping of 17-year-old Betty Hauk, of Celina, had been located at Decatur, Ind., but that no clues as to the identity of the girl's abductor had been found.

The pretty high school girl was reported recovering today although still unable to give a clear description of the man who locked her companion, Urban Kaup, 20, of Coldwater, in a corn crib after forcing him to drive from Celina to Mendon at the point of a gun.

The young couple was accosted as they were parked at the edge of Grand Lake in Celina about midnight Sunday. After locking Kaup in a corn crib, the kidnaper drove with the girl about the country-side for nearly four hours before pushing her from the car two blocks from her home in Celina, police were told.

OIL LINE BREAK CAUSES WRECK OF NEW PLANE

SANDUSKY, July 30 — A broken oil line which caused the motor to freeze in air today was blamed for the destruction of a new plane just north of nearby Berlin Heights.

The pilot, Norman Heidger, 30, of Saginaw, Mich., was taken to Memorial Hospital in neighboring Norwalk where his condition was reported as serious.

Heidger attempted to land with a dead motor, but overshot a field and as he went over a gulley a down draft pulled the plane to the earth, witnesses said.

The pilot had just taken possession of the new plane at Alliance, O., and was flying it to Saginaw.

Today's Garden-Graph

If you are growing brussels sprouts in your home garden for the first time, do not be dismayed if the first pickings are lacking in flavor. You will find that the first pickings are not as tasty as you may expect; the later ones will have more flavor.

Brussels sprouts suggestions

CANTON PACING OHIO INDUSTRY BOOST IN 1941

COLUMBUS, July 30 — Ohio industrial employment is 25 percent ahead of last year, with Canton setting the pace, the Ohio State University bureau of business research announced today.

The report, covering the month of May is the latest to be issued and shows a two percent improvement in that month.

Classified by industries, manufacturing led the list with a two percent gain in June, bringing it to 31 percent over last year. Non-manufacturing was up six percent over last year and construction, 45 percent.

Gains in the eight chief cities were Akron, 35 percent; Canton, 51; Cincinnati, 20; Cleveland, 28; Columbus, 23; Dayton, 27; Toledo, 23, and Youngstown, 20.

MIXED ROSES

WHITEHALL, N. Y., — A red rose bush, which previously bore only red roses, on the grounds of Frank Hurtubis' Blue Goose, Whitehall-Clemons road, is attracting attention because mixed with red roses is a cluster of pure white roses. Never before has this bush played such a prank, Mr. Hurtubis said and the explanation for this mixture is for a botanist.

GUERNSEY BREEDERS TO MEET AT KENMAR FARM

The South Central Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association will hold its summer field day at Kenmar Hills Farm Thursday, August 7. The farm is located four miles west of Lancaster on Route 188. There will be entertainment for everyone and a three division judging contest for men, women and children as a feature of the afternoon. Some prizes will be given the winners in each division, and the high individual will receive a grand prize. Gail Rieffner, of near Ashland, O., will be the official judge. Huber Denlinger, of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders Association will also be present for the day. A basket dinner will be enjoyed at the noon hour.

OBSERVERS SAY MASS OF COOL AIR TO ARRIVE

Temperature Remains High Despite Heavy Storms In Parts Of State

(Continued from Page One) driven temperatures to record highs was in its eighth day. Temporary relief from the heat came Tuesday afternoon when a wind and rain storm dropped temperatures from 97 to 76 degrees between 2:30 and 4:30. A hard rain was reported north of Cincinnati, but the official rain gauge at the disposal plant showed no reading. Weatherman Ervin Leist said. The Scioto River stage jumped a few inches following Tuesday's shower, but was receding Wednesday. The barometer pointed to unsettled weather Wednesday, an indication that local showers may come Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

MARIETTA, July 30 — Many Marietta cellars still were flooded today as the aftermath of an electrical storm late yesterday which brought 3.12 inches of rain and temporarily broke the heat wave. The high before the storm was 95 degrees.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 30 — The death of Mrs. Mary Lou Miller, 70, was attributed today to the excessive heat, the temperature reaching 99 in Springfield yesterday.

MARTINS FERRY, July 30 — Elissa Joyce DeColas, 2, was dead today of heat prostration.

Library Notes

How to Develop a Good Memory — by R. H. Nutt. A practical manual that attempts to show how one can develop by means of association a dependable memory for names, faces, speeches, sales talks, and details of all sorts no matter how bad a memory one may think he has. This volume is divided into two sections. Section One: This shows you how you can be sure of remembering the necessary details of daily life according to the author's "Mental Filing System" which is the basis of the book. Section Two: This section is devoted to the author's method of remembering the names and faces of people—even those one meets in a casual way.

The Time Is Now — by Pierre Van Paassen. Van Paassen's recent publication, says a reviewer in the Booklist, "may be classed, according to different political views, as alarmist war propaganda or as honest warning, but coming from a man as well informed as the author of Days of Our Years, and an avowed opponent of war, it can not be ignored. He sums up Hitler's campaign, its announced objectives and its progress, and declares bluntly that the menace to America is neither vague nor remote. 'We stand in immediate and mortal danger now.' Hitler is about to control the oceans by marching around them and holding ports and shipyards; America must stop him now."

Darkness At Noon — by Arthur Koestler. A story of the famous Moscow trials in which the characters are fictitious but the historical events which determine their actions are real. It is a psychological novel portraying the conflict between the individual and the State — in this instance the State is Russia and the individual a young communist who has been expelled from the party for being too critical.

Adventures of a White-Collar Man — by Alfred P. Sloan Jr. The autobiography of the leader of General Motors who tells of his rise from a job as draftsman in a grimy Newark factory to his present position. The book is packed with reminiscences and intimate details concerning men and events during the days of industrial expansion and Detroit's growth in becoming a center for the automobile industry. It carries an introduction by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Soong Sisters — by Emily Hahn. A biography of three famous modern Chinese women, Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the father of the Chinese revolution, Mme. Kung, wife of China's financial wizard, and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Generalissimo. Charlie Soong, the sisters' father, his American friendships and associations, and his work with Sun Yat-sen begin the story. The book is also an informal story of the Chinese revolution in which members of the family had different parts.

Jewels and Gems — by L. S. McDonald. An inviting book of lore surrounding the origin and use of precious stones. Not only is there a unique history of gems themselves but the acts of men to possess them have changed the course of history. There are excellent chapters on diamonds, jade, pearls, and treasures in

SEIZURE OF JAP FISHING BOATS HITS ESPIONAGE

19 Vessels Active In Area Around Hawaii Grabbed By U. S. Treasury

Widespread Nipponese Acts In Pacific Charged By Government

WASHINGTON, July 30—Seizure by the United States of a fleet of 19 Japanese fishing vessels in Hawaiian waters on suspicion of espionage was revealed today by the U. S. Treasury.

The vessels were secretly taken into American custody by the coast guard on charges that their masters violated U. S. navigation laws and falsified registry of the boats.

The case came to light in a report to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau from his chief coordinator of the treasury's far-flung enforcement agencies, Elmer L. Irely.

While there was no previous inkling of the seizures, the report, covering the agencies wide-spread activities for this year, disclosed that the boats were taken over in late February and kept confidential until today.

Six Forfeited

Six of the vessels have been forfeited to the United States government while the remainder are being held at Honolulu.

Japanese naval reserve officers were on the fishing boats when they were boarded by the coast guard and the amacks were equipped with auxiliary motors.

As an outgrowth of the seizures, federal indictments were returned in the Honolulu district court in March against 71 Japanese, mostly aliens, and three Honolulu fishing companies.

The citations charged conspiracy to violate American navigation laws, falsification of registry statements and income tax evasion, but officials believed spying was involved.

The American government has long suspected the Japanese fishing fleet of engaging in espionage, not only in the Pacific Isles, but along the entire Pacific Coast.

Irely said that none of the Nipponese boats met requirements of American laws which specify that vessels under U. S. registry must be owned by American citizens.

Long months of investigation, directed by William Jennings Bryan Jr., customs collector at Los Angeles, revealed that the Japanese had registered their ships under the names of American-born wives, children and other relatives.

"In some instances," Irely reported, "these Japanese lived in Japan, in others they made regular trips to Japan, ostensibly to get medical treatment or to take the baths." Another "suspicious thread" in the inquiry, he added, was the financing of the boats by the three fishing companies—the Pacific Fishing Co., Ltd., Honolulu Fishing Co., Ltd., and the Hawaii Suisan Kaisha, Ltd.

The companies, it was revealed, mortgaged some of the vessels with mortgages "too heavy for individual owners to carry."

Blanket Names Used

One device used to conceal the true ownership of the boats, informed sources said, was use of "blanket names," a common practice among the Japanese. The name "Kasuga Maru" was designated to four ships, and the names "Tenjin Maru," "Kujo Maru," and "Nippon Maru" were given two ships each.

Irely said the coordinated efforts of the Customs Agency Service, the Coast Guard and Intelligence unit of the "Internal Revenue Bureau in the investigation "in view of world conditions is regarded as the most momentous case developed . . . during the fiscal year ended June 30."

Venetian gondolas are not painted in bright colors because in 1562 a sumptuary edict was passed by the Great Council of Venice making black the compulsory color of the gondolas.

RUSSIAN MIRACLE

THE idea slowly sifts into American minds that the Russians might actually win this war, or at least not lose it. Strange as it seems, the notion is no more incredible than the courage and resourcefulness with which the Russians have fought. And no more incredible than the amazing preparedness revealed, in a nation that we have assumed to be superficial, incompetent and incapable of concerted action.

The Russians certainly had prepared to meet such an onslaught, although at the moment they were caught at a disadvantage by Hitler's sudden and treacherous assault. They have far more war materials than outsiders imagined. Also more military training, and better plans and discipline, than the world expected.

The German militarists, who should have known all about the situation in Russia, whether human or material, were misinformed. The Nazis are not merely fighting Russian machines and war materials; they are fighting men, and those men are proving themselves to be of a valiant breed. In spite of political tyranny, in warfare they seem more like Americans than like Germans. They are flexible and resourceful as well as patriotic. They are good individual fighters, able to improvise methods and strategy as occasion requires. And they are giving Hitler the worst headache he ever had.

BY-PASSING DAKAR

IF Uncle Sam is looking for a foothold in west Africa, to help in keeping the Atlantic Ocean safe for democracy, and finds Dakar too hard a nut to crack, he might try Liberia. That is the Negro colony established a few hundred miles south of Dakar by American philanthropy a century ago. It still maintains its independence and its gratitude to America, and would probably be very willing, to cooperate.

There is, however, no decent harbor on Liberia's sea frontage. A better bet might be Sierra Leone, which lies west of Liberia and is owned by Britain, and has the best natural harbor in West Africa. It is also nearer to Dakar, and is as near Brazil as Dakar is. Britain would doubtless be reasonable about it. We may be hearing more of that before long.

It's about time for the democracies to talk turkey to the Turks.

WORLD AT A GLANCE.....

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

AS STATE departmental chief of Uncle Sam's campaign of economic warfare against the Axis countries, Assistant Secretary Dean Acheson has the bulk of responsibility for enforcing the presidentially proclaimed Yankee blacklist of Latin-American individuals, firms and corporations which, having German or Italian affiliations, are accused of keeping trade moving between the United States and the Nazis and Fascists, to their advantage.

The blacklist probably is or soon will be pretty effective.

Pan-American Cultural Co-ordinator Nelson A. Rockefeller's outfit is said to have compiled the list of about 2,000 suspected concerns, and its sources of information appear to be fairly reliable. With the commerce department's co-operation, our export licensing system should shut off shipments to the suspects; even if there are Yankee houses that are willing to sell to 'em, they won't be able to get licenses to make deliveries. Besides the blacklisted would-be buyers' funds in this country have been frozen.

The delicate part of Secretary Acheson's stunt is to make his blacklist stick without violently antagonizing our southern neighbors against Uncle Sam.

We don't mind hurting the feelings of some out-and-out German or Italian firm in such a city as Rio de Janeiro or Santiago or Buenos Aires. But even concerns of this sort are apt to have native friends in neighborhoods where, perhaps, they've been doing business for maybe a couple of generations.

HOW ABOUT THESE?

Furthermore, plenty of purely Latin-American houses (without a drop of Axis blood in them) have long traded, profitably to themselves, with German and Italian customers. Choking THEM off doesn't make for Pan-American solidarity.

The same difficulty presented itself during the last war. It wasn't so bad then, though, because we were making no particular bid for western hemispherical good neighborliness.

For quite awhile before our blacklist was proclaimed Cultural Co-ordinator Rockefeller toiled industriously to get our inter-American trade out of the hands of pro-Axis concerns in the southern republics, and INTO the hands of concerns that like us and the democracies generally.

Co-ordinator Rockefeller and Secretary Acheson still are pushing this program. That is, whenever and wherever a firm's blacklisted, some other, friendlier firm is being urged by the first opportunity created by the first firm's elimination. The theory is that the new firm, profiting by the rearrangement, will like us so much better that it'll offset the hostility of the one we've blacklisted.

It has been stated that about 1,000 of these readjustments were effected prior to the blacklist's publication. But there were 2,000 more that wouldn't agree, so they had to be blacklisted. If the scheme has a weakness, it is that it requires such an awful lot of Latin-American co-operation.

WILL IT WORK?

The state department reckons that broadcasting the names of the blacklisted houses will have a mighty unfavorable publicity effect upon 'em — that it'll make Latin Americans hate them. That, of course, remains to be seen. The department's impression, from advices it gets, from its agents below the Rio Grande (oh yes, we have them, as well as the Axis bunch), that the Latin Americans are dead willing to be defended from overseas. All they ask is, "Can we absolutely depend on Uncle Sam to defend, not only himself, but all of us?"

Dictator Franco of Spain told them the other day, by radio, that Uncle Samuel will be committing outright suicide if he butts into the war. What he needs is an answer from Washington — and in Spanish and Portuguese, since our neighbors will understand without any translating.

And there's one other thing we can do. It's called "preclusive buying."

The Latin Americans produce a tremendous amount of raw materials that the Axis requires imperatively. They'd just as soon sell it to us as to the Axis. If we buy it, the Axis won't get it. It will be more than we've any use for, but buying it and dumping it down the sewer won't be any more expensive than war preparation. Additionally, we'll solidify Pan-America; we'll be such good customers.

U. S. CLOSES PANAMA CANAL

WASHINGTON—Secretary Stimson was telling the absolute truth when he denied that the discovery of a time-bomb was responsible for keeping ten Japanese ships out of the Panama Canal. For this was not the reason.

Real reason why the Canal was barred to the Japanese was the discovery that two of their ships were floating bazars being rushed to the east coast of South America to grab off the trade which Axis operators were forced to abandon as a result of the U. S. blacklist.

Apparently the Japs had a tip that the blacklist was going to be issued, because the two ships hastily left the west coast and were waiting to go through the Canal, when suddenly the blacklist was published. Equipped with elaborate merchandizing displays, and carrying high-powered, Spanish-speaking salesmen, the ships were literal arsenals of economic warfare. With them, the Japanese would have invaded the most lucrative markets in Latin America before either the U. S. or the Latin Americans could have moved to block them.

WOMEN'S TAX RIGHTS

Representative Frank ("Doc") Crowther of New York, high-ranking GOP member of the House Ways and Means committee, occupied the center of the stage when House Republicans caucused behind closed doors on the $3,500,000,000 defense tax bill.

However, it was Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, Ohio's charming widow legislator, who stole the show with a firebrand lecture on "Women's rights."

Crowther had just begun explaining the section of the bill requiring husbands and wives to file joint income returns, which he vigorously supported in committee, when Mrs. Bolton, who is just as vigorously opposed, jumped to her feet.

"I would like to ask the gentleman," she inquired tartly, "if any women were called before the Ways and Means committee, while this bill was being considered, to testify in defense of the American home?"

"The lofty subject to which the lady from Ohio refers was not discussed to my knowledge," grinned Crowther. "No one, man, woman or child, came before the committee and asked to be heard, though we held lengthy hearings and listened to many witnesses on various phases of the tax question."

"Well, if you had given American women a chance to be heard," shot back Mrs. Bolton, "you wouldn't have approved this outrageous joint-returns section. It takes us back to the days of feudalism, when a man was lord and master of the home and his wife was considered little more than a chattel."

Then, waving an admonishing finger at her colleagues, Mrs. Bolton continued: "This part of the tax bill is an invasion of the home. It says that a wife must pool whatever earnings she makes with her husband."

SYNOPSIS

YLENA VARANOFF, young and pretty wife of THEODORE VINCENT, wealthy easterner, arrives in La Madera. She sends ROSE, housekeeper for VERNON STONE, the Vincent family attorney, back east to keep her informed about CARLYLE, Ylena's little daughter, who is in the custody of Vincent's mother. Ylena meets two young men in La Madera. One, TATE CROMWELL, is arrogant, self-confident of his way with women. The other, SCOTT HAMILTON, is a pleasant young dude rancher.

YESTERDAY: Theodore Vincent nearly finds Ylena in Vernon Stone's office in New York, where she has arrived suddenly.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THEODORE VINCENT wagged a finger at Lawyer Vernon Stone, after finding lipstick on the whiskey glass. "So it's a girl, huh? That's even funnier." He looked around and spotted the closed door that led to the conference room. "I'll bet she's in there. Bring her out, Vernon, old boy. Don't be so stingy." He glanced again at the coral lipstick. "A blonde, too. Yes, it has to be a blonde to wear this color." Casually he said, "I remember that Ylena used to have a lipstick about this same color."

Vernon Stone felt his throat constrict. Needless, because Vincent had a sudden new interest. "I'd like a drink myself—yes, that's what I want. As big a drink as you've served your girl friend."

The attorney hastened to fill the glass half full. With one convulsive movement Theodore downed it. Then he jerked his body to an even deeper position in his chair and said, "Yes, you've got to send me to Sunday school again, and as usual keep my mother from finding out. That's one thing I won't have her knowing about me."

"Haven't you ever considered getting enough of a grip on yourself so that these periodic excursions no longer would be necessary? Then there would be nothing for your mother to know."

"Don't be infantile, Stone. I do dread it, though. Lord! He shivered violently."

"I don't want to be cured. The cure isn't very pleasant and in your case rather useless. Just a regular bit of business that doesn't seem to take."

Slyly Theodore said, "I'm too smart for it. But it's got to get me in shape to go south with mother and the baby in December. Merry Christmas and all that, you know. She won't let me around Carlyle if I've had even a drink." Suddenly his mouth twisted into a one-sided grin. "By the way, did you ever hear anything about old Rose?"

Stone gave a disinterested shake of the head. "I've quit looking. She's gone and that's that. Perhaps she wanted to leave me. Old people are eccentric, as you should know. And now, Theodore, I'm most busy with three important cases, so you'd better run along. I'll make the arrangements for you today. I'll telephone the—yes, Miss Forbush?" he frownedly inquired of the girl who had demanded his attention with her interruption.

Avoiding the appreciative eyes of the sprawling Vincent, she walked swiftly to the lawyer's side. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Stone, but this memorandum—I forgot it and I'm sure it is important."

Stone's shrewd eyes flitted over the scrap of paper. "Yes, it is important. Thank you, Miss Forbush. I'll take care of it immediately." The message he tore into bits and tossed into a waste basket. "I'll make the arrangements," he began again.

Vincent mumbled, while watching the retreat of the office girl. "Yes, tell old Wetherill his star pupil will be up soon for another little gold star. That old crocodile! I'd like to cut his throat."

Vincent's departure, verbally prodded by the attorney, brought Ylena from her hiding place in the adjoining room. Stone locked the doors against further intrusion and they were alone.

"Well, Ylena," he commanded, "what did you mean with your message to tell Theodore I was sending him to another place?" "Because you are, but I don't know just where yet." She moved to a wide window and looked westward toward a barge puffing up the Hudson. Stone joined her. "Tell me, Vernon, how did Theodore get Rose in the first place?"

"Through mildly gangster tactics, I assume. Probably expertly conked on the head, shuffled into an automobile, driven to a hideout. That's the usual procedure." He took off gold-rimmed glasses and lightly massaged his eyelids. "You can buy hoodlums for a dime a dozen."

"Then what's the matter with you, Vernon? You've a dime, haven't you? Let's get us a dozen."

Vernon Stone gave the girl a look of unmitigated horror. "Ylena, are you suggesting that I—"

She said intensely, "I'm suggesting that you find Rose, something you'll never do through your straight-laced ethics. This is our golden opportunity. While Theodore is away in some secluded spot, perhaps up in Connecticut with a couple of competent doctors, we'll use the other ten to nab Clarkson."

Vernon's breath escaped forcefully through his teeth. With complete awe he looked into the girl's earnest face. "Good heavens, Ylena, you play more surprises on a person than Thurston in his prime. The West certainly has done something for you—why, you're the sort of woman who could kneel by a covered wagon and pop redskins into the dust."

Ylena spread her hands and shrugged loftily. "First you think the day coach isn't good enough for me, and now you have me in a covered wagon—but you're right. I am learning to fight. I've learned it from Scott Hamilton. He has given me courage."

Quietly, Stone said: "Are you sure it isn't love?" "Heavens, no! I'm in love with Tate Cromwell—but back to help Rose. The important thing is to locate our men."

Vernon began to stammer, "But how?" "Where—who—?" Then his mouth stilled. "Bon-Bon Scionti! I saved him from the chair. Years ago, and naturally he's always wanted to do me a favor." He went to his private phone. "I'll call him."

Clarkson strutted. He always had. Even in his most servile moments, he strutted. Even in church! Ylena, on her knees toward the rear of the cathedral, watched him enter and make his way to a pew directly before the altar. She wore a plain, pool-looking black coat, and instead of a hat, a shawl-like head covering of black lace. She carried a rosary of imitation pearls. A grieving Spanish refugee with raven hair, deep-toned skin, long dark lashes down-cast over the green eyes that might possibly reveal her identity, and reddened lips moving in prayer.

At first Ylena could not decide what made Clarkson look so different, then realized that his sober butler-valet attire had been replaced by a business suit and topcoat of stripes, dashing certainly, gawdy almost in the candle-light tranquility of the lofty cathedral.

Undenably he was on very close terms with heaven. His respects took such a short time. Out of the corner of her eye, Ylena caught the smug look on his narrow face as he walked past her. Then she followed him out. He was stepping into a maroon and chromium coupe—MY car, she thought. Quickly, she glided across the pavement and slid into a nondescript tinny affair of rusty black.

To the bulky, gigantic shouldered driver she said, "There he is, I hope you can keep up with him."

"Lady," her companion assured, "we'll keep up if I have to get out and carry this aspirin box."

Despite his avowal, it was quite a Sunday mid-morning, Clarkson drove swiftly. Tires zinged as he turned corners. After a few minutes Ylena forgot her fear that he might notice their pursuit, for she gradually became aware that he had no apprehensions. Why should he look behind? He was living in a world of glorious intoxication based on a vicarious power. King for the time being. Little bantam Clarkson. A swashbuckler!

He circled about the palatial apartments on the East river and then on to the unfashionable, rough section where he suddenly swerved to a halt before an old brownstone house. On the high steps a large, beefy looking man sat smoking a cigar. Instantly he leaped to his feet, tossed the stub aside and lifted his hand to Clarkson in what was almost a salute.

Clarkson, dapper monarch, acknowledged the homage with a brief nod and trotted up the steps to disappear inside.

Ylena leaned far to her side and sweetly peered over his shoulder as they continued their swift pace. The big man had paid no attention to them; he was lighting a fresh cigar. The girl glanced at the top floor of the decrepit building and saw that the windows were boarded.

"That proves it," she said to the driver. "She's there, all right."

"What do we do now?" he asked eagerly.

"Nothing until next Sunday. We need time to make plans." She looked into his hybrid face, working with disappointment.

He drew a breath that was practically asthmatic with rage. "You mean I gotta wait a whole week to find out what makes that fussy little wart tick—listen, lady, I don't want no dough. I'll work on that guy for pleasure."

Swimming Gives Best All-Around Exercise

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Swimming, as we mentioned recently, is the best natural all-around exercise. Walking is a natural form of exercise, but it does not exercise the arms, trunk, or shoulders very much. I suppose climbing trees could be called a appearance of a dishwasher's hands."

Dr. Taylor advocated the continuous forcing of air bubbles out of the nose after the diver hits the water and during under water swimming.

Diving and Colds

Dr. David Mezz, of Brooklyn, however, who has made equally valuable experimental studies on the subject, does not believe that nasal exhalation or combined exhalation to hold back water is effective in preventing water from entering the nose. He quoted the experiments of Hasty to show that in pools during the time of swimming, the water represents the combined washings of the nasal mucous membrane of every swimmer.

Feet-first diving, repeated diving and backstroke swimming are the worst offenders in exposing the nose to deluges of water. Chilling of the body surface is also a factor in producing nose and ear infections.

Dr. Mezz has devised a rubberized nose clip to close the nasal openings and recommends it for swimmers and divers, especially those who tend to catch cold easily.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. A. S.: "Will you tell what causes the heart to skip a beat every few minutes? There is no pain. Would it be from gas?"

Answer: Skipping pulse is so common in people over forty as to be normal. It does not harm. The skipped beat is really a premature beat and called an extrasystole.

Anonymous: "Is it possible to have a good healthy tooth pulled from one person and set in someone else's mouth?"

Answer: I'm afraid not. At least I know of no successful example.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. LOMBARDO'S SERIES

Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, top favorites of dancers and listeners for the past ten years, will present a new and original series of Saturday night musical programs starting August 2nd. Emanating from New York City, the Saturday half-hours will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m.

"BLIND ALLEY"

"Blind Alley" will be the next "Great Moments From Great Plays" broadcast produced and adapted by Charles Martin Friday, at 8 p. m. A psychological melodrama, which was seen on Broadway and on the screen, "Blind Alley" concerns a gangster who hides out in a professor's home. The latter, whose life is threatened by the unwelcome visitor, makes use of his knowledge of psychoanalysis to wear down the crook's courage and confidence. Ray Block's orchestra supplies the background music. Starting with

FLORIMEL WINS TROTTERING OAKS RACE AT GOSHEN

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 30 —Florimel, an arden Homestead Stable entry in the classic Hambletonian Stakes race, today held one of the feature victories on the Grand Circuit program at Goshen's historic track.

Harry Pownall raced the filly home first in the Coaching Club Trotting Oaks for three-year-old females. The E. Roland Harrison horse was followed to the finish by Hollywood Anna, second, and Gloaming, third.

Acacia, starting out as the pacer in the contest yesterday, was in a collision, threw her driver, Clint Hodgins, and ran wild for half a mile before being stopped.

The $1,000 E. H. Harriman Challenge trophy for two-year-olds was won by G. H. Benham's Cannon Ball. The victor was driven by Harry Whitney.

DYKES IN DENIAL HE WILL CHANGE TO TIGER CLUB

PHILADELPHIA, July 30 —Jimmy Dykes, peppery Chicago White Sox manager, was on record today with a flat denial that he will manage the Detroit Tigers next year for a salary of $35,000.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," Dykes said of the report published in a Chicago newspaper of a deal with Walter Briggs Sr., Detroit owner. "I haven't signed my 1942 contract with the White Sox so far, but that is merely a formality."

REDS WIN, 7-4, OVER TERRYMEN; BUCKY TO HURL

Gene Thompson Comes To Riddle's Assistance, Pitches Fine Ball

CINCINNATI, July 30—Boasting one "gift victory," over the New York Giants, the world champion Cincinnati Reds tonight will shoot Bucky Walters at Marston Bill's boys in a night game at Crosley Field.

Walters will be after his 13th win of the season and will be opposed in the venture by Johnny Wittig, the current hot shot of the slow-moving Giants.

The Reds scored a 7-4 win over the New Yorkers yesterday but it wasn't entirely their fault that they won. The Giants solved Elmer "The Great" Riddle without much difficulty and drove him to cover after three lousy frames. Riddle gave up four runs and seven hits before Junior Thompson came on the scene to halt the Giants and stick around to get the victory after the big explosion.

The champs picked up a couple of markers in the fourth on Lonnie Frey's double and singles by Frank McCormick and Ival Goodman and a long fly. Then in the fifth, the balloon went up. Four singles, two walks and two passed balls sent five runs scampering across the plate and there went the old ball game for the Giants.

Frank McCormick was the hitting star for the Reds, pounding out three singles while Frey was next with a double and a single. Mel Ott laced a homer and single for the Giants and the veteran Joe Moore connected for a double and two one-basers.

Kenny Carpenter started and was the losing hurler for the visitors.

DEMPSEY SAYS NOVA MAY WIN FROM CHAMPION

SALT LAKE CITY, July 30—Jack Dempsey, who isn't so spry as he used to be, nevertheless made a big jump today—right onto the bandwagon of Lou Nova, the kid with the "cosmic punch."

"Nova will be the next heavyweight champion of the world," the old Manassa Mauler predicted. However, he made one important reservation in forecasting the outcome of Lou's forthcoming title bout with Champion Joe Louis. Nova has to weather the first five rounds.

"If he can stay in there past the fifth, Lou will win," Jack said. "Joe is not nearly the fighter he used to be."

Happy over his reconciliation with his wife, the former Hannah Williams, Dempsey was in Salt Lake City for a reunion with his mother, brother and two sisters. His daughters, Joan, 7, and Barbara, 5, also have arrived for a visit.

The former champion will head back to New York in ten days to join his wife. "The sailing will be smooth from now on," he promised.

GLITT OUTFIT TOPS PACKERS

Five Runs in Third Frame Do Work, With Smallwood Holding Groce Crew

A big third inning in which five runs were scored gave the Glitt Ice Cream softball crew a 6-2 victory over the Groce Packing Company outfit. The game was played Tuesday evening at the Ted Lewis Recreation Center.

The ball game was a fast one, the Packing crew getting two markers in the first frame, the Glitt's sewing it up in the third and adding another in the seventh.

Smallwood gave up four hits for the winners, while Pettibone for the losers was touched six times.

Purina Chows and Circleville Oils play Wednesday evening.

ARCHIBALD CS. WRIGHT

NEW YORK, July 31—A featherweight championship fight between Joey Archibald, the New York titlist, and Chalky Wright, California Negro, will be arranged within the next week, Al Weill, Archibald's manager, disclosed today. The New York Boxing Commission ordered Weill to get contracts for the bout signed before the commission meets again, and moreover, prohibited Archibald from squaring off with anybody else until he had encountered Wright.

Red Cochrane, Rated As 4 to 1 Underdog, Wins Zivic's Welter Crown

By Jack Mahon
NEWARK, N. J., July 30 — A tough, 26-year-old red-headed Irish kid from the same block in near-by Elizabeth on which another great champion, Mickey Walker, was born, is the welterweight champion of the world today—but may go into the Army before he has a chance to defend his title.

That's the news out of this rejoicing city today as Freddie (Red) Cochrane, a 4-1 under-dog, read victory wires of congratulation for his

MILLERS MOVE FARTHER AHEAD OF A. A. CREWS

By International News Service
The Minneapolis Millers, a team of bombarding long-hitters today gave indications of pulling away from the closely-bunched teams in the first division in the hot American Association pennant race. After crushing the St. Paul Saints, 11-7 while the second place Columbus Red Birds were falling before Toledo, 7-1, the Millers held a 3½ game margin over the Birds while Louisville was third 5½ games back and Kansas City fourth 7½ games off the pace.

Fifth-place Indianapolis, the hottest team in the league at the present time, nipped Louisville last night 1-0 behind the effective six-hit pitching of Ray Starr who was turning in his 19th win of the season. In last night's other games, the Kansas City Blues trimmed the Milwaukee cellar dwellers, 13-8.

The Millers pounded out five home runs, a triple and two doubles for a total of 34 bases to rout the Saints. Fabian Gaffke hit his 19th circuit clout of the year to maintain his loop lead while Ab Wright tagged his 18th and just two back were Babe Barna and Otto Denning who hit their 16th in the bombardment of St. Paul. Frankie Trechok hit the fifth round-tripper for the loop leaders.

Frank "Porky" Biscan, sensational rookie hurler for the Toledo Mud Hens, set the Columbus nine down with seven scattered bingles as his mates combed three hurriers for 10 hits and a 7-1 victory. Charley Brumbeloe was the losing hurler. Milt Byrnes clubbed a homer for the Hens.

Indianapolis scored a tally in the top of the ninth to give Ray Starr a 1-0 decision over Emerson Dickman and Louisville. Kansas City snuffed out a five-run rally by the Milwaukee Brewers in the first of the ninth to win a 13-8 victory. The Blues scored six in the third.

ALL-STAR GRID ELEVEN ALMOST SET FOR AUG. 28

CHICAGO, July 30 — An all-Big Ten backfield and a line including two more Big Ten players, two stars from the east, one from the far west and one each from the south and southwest — that today appeared to be the probable lineup of the collegiate eleven which will tackle the pro champion Chicago Bears August 28 in the annual all-star football classic at Soldier Field.

Voting in the national poll to select the college starters ended last midnight, and final ballots were being tabulated today, with the official starting team to be announced tomorrow.

Indications were the collegiate starting team would lineup as follows, barring a sudden rush of votes for one or more of the runners-up in the late balloting:

Ends—Dave Rankin, Purdue, and Eddie Rucinski, Indiana; tackles—Nick Drahos, Cornell, and Ernest Pennell, Texas A. and M.; guards—Augie Llo, Georgetown, and Tommy O'Boyle, Tulane; center—Rudy Mucha, Washington; quarterback—Forest Evansheviski, Michigan; halfbacks—Tommy Harmon, Michigan, and George Franck, Minnesota; fullback—George Paskvan, Wisconsin.

In addition to the eleven starters selected by the fans, some 50 other leading college players of 1940 will be invited to join the all-star squad, which will go into training for the classic August 10 at Northwestern University.

upset of Pittsburgh's Fritz Zivic at Ruppert Stadium last night. Cochrane, after stealing a long early lead, managed to stave off Zivic's desperate closing, blood-stained rally in five, desperate final rounds to bring the first title to New Jersey since the famed Toy Bulldog won the very same 147-pound title from Jack Britton way back in 1922.

Red, a close friend of Zivic's outside the ring, had invited Fritz, the night of the champion's cinch win over Al (Bummy) Davis in New York, to a "V for victory" dinner, win or lose, after last night's bout. Zivic and his handlers regretfully refused the invitation after the biggest upset in Jersey's recent ring history.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York, who with Babe Culnan of this city staged last night's show, said the contracts called for Cochrane to give Zivic a return match within 60 days. He indicated he would put the match in New York's Madison Square Garden if everything could be worked out.

After the fight, however, as Cochrane prepared to depart for his victory party at his Hillside, N. J., tavern, it was learned, Freddie, free, white and 26, had sent in his draft questionnaire over a month ago and might very well be called to the colors within two months.

If he is, Cochrane will go into the service with his title—the first prize fighter to do so since the conscription law was passed.

Zivic was his characteristically cocky self in his dressing room. Never one to go in for explanations or long-winded alibis, the ex-champ simply stated that he felt he had been fighting too much lately and that he "just couldn't get started until it was too late" against Red. "I've fought three times in a month. That's too much," said Zivic. He added that he was very very anxious to get a return shot at Cochrane and promised there would be no disputing the outcome the next time.

Cochrane was very excited and also very modest in victory. While a mob of well-wishers and semi-mystical friends and fans flocked around his dressing room, Red, who was born just four houses on Bond Street from the home of Mickey Walker, said "I always knew I could beat Zivic if I got the chance." That was the extent of his victory speech.

The fight itself saw Cochrane amaze the crowd of about 10,000 by beating Zivic at his own game in the early rounds. Red tied up Fritz, drubbed him with uppercuts, out-fought him in close and won seven of the first ten rounds on the INS score-card.

Zivic won the last five to wind up with seven and seven with one even as we saw it, but we gave Red the fight because he won his rounds by a more convincing margin. Referee Joe Mangold called it seven for Cochrane, four for Zivic and called four even.

NEW YORK, July 30—Grover Cleveland Alexander's condition was reported as improving today at Bellevue Hospital, but the former star pitcher of the National League can not be described as out of danger, hospital attaches said. ENDS—Dave Rankin, Purdue, and Eddie Rucinski, Indiana; tackles—Nick Drahos, Cornell, and Ernest Pennell, Texas A. and M.; guards—Augie Llo, Georgetown, and Tommy O'Boyle, Tulane; center—Rudy Mucha, Washington; quarterback—Forest Evansheviski, Michigan; halfbacks—Tommy Harmon, Michigan, and George Franck, Minnesota; fullback—George Paskvan, Wisconsin.

SENATE'S REMOVAL OF EXCESS WHEAT PENALTIES TERMED IMPORTANT

FARMERS MAY BE PERMITTED TO FEED CROP

Payments To Stop If House Takes Similar Steps, Officials Say

REBATES ARE UNLIKELY

Harvest In Pickaway Area Almost Completed; Good Average Reported

A Senate vote of 34 to 23 to remove penalties from excess wheat used as livestock feed or for home use on the farm led to an announcement Wednesday from the county AAA office that should the measure pass the House penalty payments coming into the local office would stop almost entirely.

One of the primary objections of local farmers to the control program, according to AAA officials, was that they were not permitted to feed their excess wheat, especially with the present high prices on livestock.

Should the 49 cent penalty be removed, practically all local farmers who had not already disposed of their excess would feed their wheat rather than pay the 49 cent a bushel penalty, which would mean that revenue from penalty payments would practically stop. There are very few farms in the county which do not have enough livestock to take care of what excess wheat the farm might have, AAA authorities pointed out.

Rebates Possible?
County Committeemen wondered, however, what would happen to the farmers who already had paid their penalty and had marketed their excess grain. As far as is known, no provision is made for rebates in such cases.

Few farmers in the county have stored their excess other than on the farms. There are several who have wheat stored at Kingston, but should the 49 cent penalty on excess wheat for livestock be removed, those farmers would be able to get their wheat back, AAA officials said.

Local officials feared that passage of such a measure would mean that they would have to "undo" much of the work already accomplished under the AAA program relating to marketing excess.

Average Good One
The wheat harvest in the county is practically finished, and its 63,000 acres of wheat have produced an estimated 1,575,000 bushels of grain. Wheat throughout the county has averaged 25 bushels to the acre, farm leaders believe. Almost 1,700 of the 1,800 marketing quota cards have been distributed to farmers, which means that most of the farmers have paid their penalties and marketed their excess, have agreed to store their excess or have raised less than 15 acres of wheat.

It's a pleasant change to read of a "British blitz."

Trip Detoured

POLICE officers at Wichita, Kan., were amazed when they found 9-year-old Barbara Hayden, above, hiding in a railway boxcar clad in high-heeled boots and cowgirl suit. Barbara told the officers that she had hoped the freight train would carry her to Hollywood—where she could be a real cowgirl.

LOANS PROVIDED TO AID FARMER START HIS CROP

Emergency loans for the production of winter wheat and other small grains, and for the purchase of feed for livestock, are now available to farmers in Pickaway County. Applications for these loans are being received in Circleville, at the office of County Agent, by Clarence Fealty, field supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks, or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs for growing 1941 winter grain crops, or purchasing feed for livestock, and in no instance may exceed $400.00.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or, in the case of loans for the purchase of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

band's income. It does not recognize her as an individual or a wage-earner, but as a subservient chattel.

Mrs. Bolton's oratorical effort won a rousing ovation from her male colleagues, but no votes. Joint returns are calculated to bring in over $300,000,000 of additional revenue.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The President's recent radio talk was one of the shortest he has ever made. It timed only 15 minutes, 30 seconds. The broadcast was handled entirely by transcription. Each of the three radio networks made a "platter", or a record, and then played the record back for the radio transmission. . . . The President wasted no time when he came into the Oval Room in the White House. "Are you boys all ready?", he said, and launched into the speech without even a voice level.

"YOU'RE IN THE ARMY NOW"
While there will be a lot of noisy breast-beating in the opposition, you can write this down as certain:

1. Congress will approve the retention of the National Guard and selectees in the army.

2. The House will pass the $3,500,000,000 defense tax bill in the form recommended by the Ways and Means committee.

Under the restricted debate rules of the House, action on Army retention will take only a few days. The Senate melee will last longer. The isolationist-appeasement bloc will take advantage of the issue to unleash a wide-range blitz on the President's foreign policy. Central theme of this attack will be the charge that he is secretly leading the country into war.

However, while the senatorial antics will unlimber their heaviest oratorical guns, their attack will be largely a hit-and-run affair.

Privately they are not prepared to accept the President's challenge to block the legislation. They will denounce him fiercely, but they will very carefully back away from the responsibility of ridding the army. Tip-off on their tactics was Senator Burt Wheeler's conduct during the consideration of the War Department's "draft property" bill.

The Montanan clawed it from stem to stern, and then ducked out of the Senate and was nowhere around when the far-reaching measure was adopted without even a rollcall.

NEW TAX BILL

The House will pass the tax bill chiefly because the rank-and-file know little about it and Ways and Means tax measures are always approved. The process will require about a week.

But in the Senate it will be different.

The Senate Finance Committee

$2,338 GRANTED TO LAND OWNER IN RT. 22 SUIT

A jury of 11 men and one woman Tuesday allowed the Nannie W. Foresman interests $2,338 in their easement case against the State Highway Department.

The total amount represented $338 for the 3.23 acres of land taken from the Foresman property for the construction of Route 22 across the land and $2,000 as compensation for damage to the remaining land.

The State Highway Department originally had offered the Foresman interests $1920 for the easement rights. It was generally believed in court circles that the Foresman interests would carry the case to a higher court, providing their motion for a new trial is overruled.

During the case the jury heard testimony from 14 witnesses, nine for the plaintiff and five for the state. Jurors deliberated slightly over two hours before making their decision. The decision was signed by all twelve of the jurors, although only nine are required in a civil action.

C. E. Dick, Monroe Township, was foreman of the jury.

Wild turkeys are easily domesticated.

will subject the bill to a microscopic scrutiny, requiring at least a month. Next the committee will start writing its own bill, which, based on past performances, is certain to differ in important details from the House measure.

Chances are that the tax issue will not reach the Senate floor before October; so that Nov. 1 is an early guess for the legislation finally to reach the White House for Roosevelt's signature.

ELECTRIC SERVICE HIT

Rain That Falls In Parts
Of County Fails To Relieve City

By International News Service
After the first restful night in a week, heat-whipped Ohioans
awoke today refreshed but still in
for one more warm day before
the torrid wave, which has gripped most of the nation for more than a week, comes to a definite end.

By nightfall, however, forecasters predicted that a cool mass of air moving down from the Dakotas and Minnesota would cover the entire middle west thus bringing to an end a heat wave which has taken at least 137 lives in the nation plus 144 others from drownings.

The forecast for Ohio today
called for occasional showers and not so warm but weather observers indicated that the mercury would still be above normal and that the humidity would be high.

After the mercury had climbed
near the 100-degree mark in most sections of the state yesterday, a terrific mid-afternoon electrical and rain storm brought relief to sweltering cities and parched farmlands. Within two hours and a half, the mercury dropped more than 20 degrees as a strong wind
swept the much-needed rain
along.

Columbus Hit

Rainfall in downtown Columbus totalled 1.15 inches during the two-hour storm while at Port Columbus a cloudburst fall of 2.64 inches was reported. Damage was heavy throughout the city.

In the northern part of the state, electrical service was cut off in a number of cities when lightning struck poles or proved
too great a load to the lines.

Temperatures throughout the state ranged in the low and middle seventies this morning. Columbus and Cambridge reported the lowest with a reading of 72
while Hayesville was one degree
higher. Other readings included:
Akron, 74; Dayton and Cleveland
76 and Cincinnati 77.

Circleville temperatures went up to 95 degrees at noon Wednesday as the heat wave which has

Circleville Board of Education, Wednesday, submitted its budget for the 1941-42 school year to Auditor Forrest Short, estimating that $111,829 will be required for school operation during the nine month period.

Of the total amount $58,494 will be requested from county funds,

DEBATE ON BILL TO KEEP TROOPS OPENS IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, July 30—The Senate begins debate today on the bill to keep draftees, national guardsmen and reservists indefinitely in service, with administration leaders counting heavily on the crisis with Japan to pass it by a large majority.

It was a different picture in the House, however, where it is admitted by leaders a similar bill may be defeated or drastically modified, regardless of developments in the Far East.

House Republicans will vote almost to the man against keeping draftees in service beyond the statutory one year period. The large Democratic delegations from Pennsylvania, Illinois, and the New England states are also reported ready to line up a majority with the Republicans.

The House Military Affairs Committee, failing to reach a scheduled agreement yesterday, was called back into session today. The Republican members of the committee served notice they would refuse to yield on their compromise measure. It would prohibit service of draftees beyond one year, but would authorize keeping the reservists and national guardsmen in service during the emergency.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley said Senate consideration of the controversial bill probably will result in a full dress debate on international affairs, and another test of support of the administration's foreign policy. He predicted passage by Friday or Saturday night, however.

"The crisis with Japan undoubtedly will increase support for the bill, and bring it to a speedy vote," Barkley said.

HOPKINS FLIES TO MOSCOW FOR STUDY OF WAR

F. D. R.'s Lend-Lease Aide

Washington Indicates Envoy
Will File Report With
The President

By International News Service
Arrival of Harry Hopkins, United States lend-lease administrator, in Moscow was announced in the Soviet capital today. Hopkins has been in London, and took off from there during the night.

He was accompanied by Brigadier General Joseph T. McCarney of the United States Army and Lieutenant John R. Allison of the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Hopkins recently reached London after crossing the Atlantic aboard a bomber from the United States. He discussed questions relating to the aid-Britain program with officials of the British government.

It was believed his discussions with authorities in Moscow would cover the question of American material aid to the USSR in its fight against Germany.

WASHINGTON, July 30—Government officials today took the view that the sudden Moscow trip of Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator, was ordered by President Roosevelt so that his most trusted adviser could return with a first-hand report on the Russian war effort.

There was also considerable disposition toward the belief that the trip was also arranged for any possible upward effect it might have on Soviet morale. Washington officials were inclined to believe that Hopkins' mission would have little to do with lend-lease aid inasmuch as the Russians have already given this government their requirements in this particular.

WOMAN STUFFS MAN'S BODY IN WIERTON SEWER

STUEBENVILLE, July 30—Mrs. Genovia Magnone, 43, today faced a charge of murder for the death of her husband, Marco, 47, whose body was found stuffed into a sewer 200 feet from their home in Wierton, W. Va.

According to Sheriff Richard Wright of Hancock County, W. Va. the woman confessed she shot her mate while he slept and then carried his body to the sewer.

She later produced the gun she used, Wright said.

Saboteur At St. Johns Proves to Be Tomcat

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 30—The dread cry—"sabotage!"—leaped from lip to lip today as the industrial life of St. Johns slowed . . . halted . . . died.

Not since the sacking of the Newfoundland capital by French troops nearly 300 years ago had such a desolate silence settled over every part of the city.

Slapping factory belts were made idle. Workmen stood bewildered, non-productive, before workbench and lathe.

Whirling spindles looked like a motionless merry-go-round. Trolley cars stopped in mid-journey all over town.

The bustle along waterfront docks slowed to nothing.

Lights went out in offices. Linotypes stopped their clatter,

heavy presses their rumble, in newspaper plants.

Industrially, St. Johns had been stricken lifeless by short-circuiting of the entire city's power and light system.

And through the community, borne as though by a prairie fire, ran the cry. "Sabotage—Fifth columnists!"

Repair crews hustled about the city from point to point seeking the trouble. They found it—found that only one out of nine lives had been lost.

High on a light pole, stretched lifeless across two high-tension wires, lay a tomcat, his death responsible for the short-circuit.

But before he was found, before repairs were made, several hours elapsed. And in the interim, St. Johns was a city industrially dead.

Russian Counter Drive Predicted

In Smolensk Area; Set-Back Claimed

MOSCOW, July 30—Through a series of heavy counter-attacks, Soviet forces were claimed today to have "dislodged" the Germans from their positions on the Smolensk sector of the front facing Moscow.

In one of history's most violent battles, the latest Soviet high command announcement indicated, the German drive on the Russian capital had received a serious set-back.

British military authorities said they felt the Russian counter-attacks in the Smolensk region may be the initial stages of a large-scale Soviet counter-offensive. They declared there was no evidence of any new German advance except in the Zhitomir area of the Ukraine, where the Germans are aiming their drive against Kiev.)

The war communiqué told of heavy fighting in the Smolensk and Zhitomir areas and said fighting was particularly heavy in the direction of Smolensk, "where Soviet counter-attacks dislodged enemy units."

Accompanying this announcement was a statement by Vice Foreign Commissar S. A. Lozovsky that the German advance on the whole front now has been "checked."

On the southern front Marshal Semyon Budenny's armies in the Ukraine also were reported developing a counter-drive similar to that on the central front.

The Moscow newspaper Pravda reported that Budenny watched his troops, after a three-day march, counter-attack and recapture a Ukrainian railway station.

Leningrad Being Hit By Big Guns

BERLIN, July 30—German long-range guns were reported bombarding the outskirts of Leningrad today as Nazi military officials announced repulse of Soviet counter-attacks aimed at rescuing huge Red army forces trapped east of Smolensk.

There were no details of the bombardment, but military reports said that "Big Berthas" for the first time had been brought within range and opened up on the one-time capital of the Czars.

Northeast of Smolensk, Panzer and other motorized units were said to be pushing toward Moscow as the main German segments were engaged in bitter "annihilation" battles far behind.

Berlin spokesmen hinted at some "staggering" announcement to be made over the week end, expected to afford a panoramic view of the greatest battle of the ages.

TERMS OF NAZI PEACE RUMORED IN TURK CIRCLE

LONDON, July 30—The London Daily Mail reported from Istanbul today that German embassy circles, in an effort to win Turkish support, have revealed the terms of a new peace plan which is expected to be launched even if the Nazis are only partially successful against the USSR.

According to the report, the terms would liberate Belgium, Holland and Norway entirely from Germany and make them zones of exclusive British interest.

The British Empire would be left entirely untouched and the Czech and Polish states would be reconstituted, with the Germans retaining only Poland's industrial area. The Ukraine would become autonomous but would be incorporated in the German economic system.

In exchange, according to the dispatch, Germany asks only British and American recognition of Chancellor Hitler's "new order" in Europe.

The Mail said the Turks were impressed but not as the Germans intended. The Turks were said to have pointed out that if Germany feels constrained to give up practically everything she has gained, "then her situation is more desperate than was suspected."

QUESTIONNAIRES PUT INTO MAIL FOR YOUNG MEN

Draft Advisory Board To Meet Next Week To Aid
In Filling Blanks

Selective Service officials Wednesday mailed questionnaires to the country's 142 21-year old registrants and announced that the Advisory Board would meet next Wednesday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock to assist the new group with any questions which might arise.

After questionnaires of the new group are completed the registrants will be classified and physical examinations given to those falling tentatively in the 1-A classification.

Announcement came from Maj. Harold L. Hays, executive officer at state selective service headquarters, Wednesday, that he expected at least two months to elapse before first calls will be made on the 40,500 21-year-old Ohioans registered on July 1.

Ten days are required for board considerations, another ten days are needed for physical examinations and a minimum of 22 days elapse between examinations and actual induction, Maj. Hays said.

GAYDA ATTACKS DEPTH CHARGES AS ACT OF WAR

ROME, July 30—Disclosure by Navy Secretary Knox that United States warcraft dropped depth charges off Greenland "amounts to active participation in the war" by the American Navy, Virginia Gayda wrote in the Giornale d'Italia today.

Official quarters, however, had no comment on the admission.

Reporters at a foreign office press conference were told that there is no question of an axis peace offensive at this time. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's prediction of such a move was termed a "speculative maneuver."

The spokesman said that Prime Minister Winston Churchill had admitted the difficulties being suffered by British industries. This, it was said, was caused by transfer of axis forces from the Eastern Front.

IRAN WARNED AGAINST GERMAN INFILTRATION

LONDON, July 30—Great Britain has warned Iran of the danger in permitting heavy infiltration of Germans, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today.

"His Majesty's government," Eden said, "has drawn serious attention to the danger in Iran's own interests of continuing to permit excessively large numbers of Germans in the country."

"We trust," Eden said, "that Iran will not fail to heed this warning and take the necessary measures to deal at once with the situation."

European Bulletins

BERLIN—A total of 9,120 Soviet planes has been destroyed since outbreak of Russo-German hostilities, it was announced today.

LONDON—British authorities declared today there is no truth in rumors that 20,000 American soldiers already are in Egypt.

The only American service personnel in Egypt are a few military observers, it was stated.

BERLIN—The high command announced today that a German plane sank a 6,000-ton merchant ship near the mouth of the Tyne in England while other Luftwaffe machines effectively attacked an airport in the English midlands, shooting down one RAF plane.

LONDON—The London Daily Sketch today quoted the Sydney, Australia, Daily Mirror as reporting without confirmation that British authorities at Singapore produced an initial agreement with Thailand relating to naval and air bases. Authoritative quarters in London, however, branded this report a "complete phoney" and a "clever piece of Japanese-inspired propaganda."

LONDON—German long-range "big Berthas" fired across the straits of Dover just before dawn today but failed to cause casualties or damage. The cannonade was brief and apparently aimed at shipping in the straits. Meanwhile, it was believed that British bombers attacked northern France during the night.

NEW YORK—The London radio, in a broadcast heard today by NBC, quoted Germany as claiming that Moscow was raided again last night. No further details were given.

$7,748 YEAR FOR U. S. PILOTS HIT BY FEW BRITONS

LONDON, July 30—The allegedly excessive salary of 1,937 pounds sterling (approximately $7,748) a year being paid to 162 American pilots now serving with the British Air Transport Auxiliary Service was sharply criticized by several members in the House of Commons today.

Lieut. Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, speaking for the government, defended the rate of pay and declined to terminate existing agreements at an early date.

The American fliers, he said, are doing very great service for Britain, sometimes at less pay than they would be able to obtain in the United States.

GALBREATH TO STAY

CHILLICOTHE, July 30—Corporal R. L. Galbreath, slated to be transferred from the Chillicothe Highway Patrol station to Lorain, has been notified by headquarters in Columbus that he is to remain in command of the Chillicothe office. Patrolman J. G. Edie, Chillicothe patrolman, will be transferred to Portsmouth Friday.

TOKYO MOVING TROOPS

Newspapers Continue Their Scathing Blasts At
Washington

WASHINGTON, July 30—The United States today delivered a strong representation to Japan against the bombing of the U.S.S. Tutuila, a navy gunboat, damaged this morning during a Japanese air raid on Chungking.

The representations were made to Japanese Ambassador Admiral Nomura by acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles. Welles, after conferring by telephone with President Roosevelt, summoned the Japanese envoy at the State Department, and requested him to inform the Tokyo government of this nation's concern over the bombing of the American gunboat.

The American government made the representations within a few hours after receipt of an official message from the American embassy in Chungking concerning the bombing.

According to reports from the United States naval attaché at Chungking, the superstructure of the stern of the gunboat, assigned to the Yangtze River patrol, was bent when a Japanese air bomb struck near the vessel. An outboard motorboat lying near the Tutuila was shattered by another bomb. No injuries to American seamen were reported.

In announcing this government's swift action, Welles amplified on the reports, declaring that word had been received this morning that a flight of 26 Japanese bombers which were passing over Chungking had dropped bombs immediately near to the Tutuila and very near to American embassy property.

Welles emphasized that both the gunboat and the American embassy are located on the other side of the river from Chungking proper.

The bombing recalled the famed Panay "incident" which occurred in December, 1937. The American gunboat Panay, a river vessel

REICH IN DENIAL THAT FAMED ACE ENDED HIS LIFE

LONDON, July 30—Two British newspapers, the London Daily Telegraph and Daily Sketch, today published reports that German Air General Ernst Udet, famous German aviator and creator of the Nazi parachute troops, has committed suicide.

The reports said Udet took his life after Chancellor Hitler ordered him arrested because he opposed the German invasion of Russia.

WOODRUFF LEAVES POST IN JACKSON TOWNSHIP

Two Jackson Township school faculty members handed their resignations to the Jackson board of education Tuesday night. They were C. S. Woodruff, 539 North Court Street, principal of the school, and Benjamin A. Bennett, 204 Town Street, science and industrial arts instructor. Offers of better positions elsewhere were responsible for the resignations.

Mr. Woodruff has been with Jackson Township school for the last five years. Besides serving as principal, he taught physical education, commerce and social science in the high school.

Mr. Bennett came to the school last year as science and industrial arts instructor.

Many Forms Of Competition To Prevail As Village Greet Visitors

AWARDS ARE LISTED

V. F. W. Band To Be There; Horses, Flowers, Floats To Be Shown

Scioto Township's annual homecoming, always attractive to many hundreds of central Ohioans, will open Friday and continue through Saturday with an impressive program arranged. George Finch is president of the homecoming committee and Ralph Francis is its secretary.

Numerous events are being planned by the Commercial Point residents.

Friday's competition includes pulling contests starting at 2 o'clock with cash prizes to be given to winners. Entertainment will be provided at the dance platform by Jimmy Rawlins' studios of Columbus at 4:30, and round and square dancing will begin at 7:30 to continue through the evening.

An art and flower show will be conducted, entries closing at 8 p. m. Friday. Articles shown in previous homecomings are not eligible to participate for prizes. Mrs. Ben Grace is in charge of this division of the event.

Saturday will be the big day of the celebration with a float and industrial parade scheduled at 10:30 a. m., with entries to be listed prior to 10 o'clock. A $27 prize will be given for the best float, $20 for second, $10 for third. Comics and decorated bicycles will also come in for their share of money.

A colt show will be enjoyed at 1 o'clock, with three classes provided and participation limited to Scioto Township. Accordion and other kinds of music will be provided at the dance platform, starting at 3:30.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars band, directed by Fred Hines of Ashville, will be on hand all day Saturday. A concession midway will be provided, including ferris wheel and other forms of entertainment.

'HORSEPLAY' AT CAMP IS FATAL TO SOLDIER, 21

FORT DIX, N. J., July 30—Private Michael Clancy, of Buffalo, N. Y., was under arrest today pending an army investigation into the fatal shooting of Sergeant Frank J. Russo, 21, his hometown friend, during reported "horseplay" at the Fort Dix post.

Authorities said Russo encountered Clancy on sentry duty while inspecting the guard. The private playfully unholstered his .45 caliber automatic, it was said, and then Russo fell with mortal chest wounds even as a nearby soldier shouted: "Look out, the gun's loaded."

Clancy and Russo belonged to the same outfit—Company F, 147th Infantry, 44th Division—and had been close friends for many years, army officers said.

HIRING OF INSTRUCTOR FILLS WASHINGTON CORPS

Miss Carmonelle Collins of Wheelersburg, who was employed at Ashville last year, has been named by the Washington Township board of education to teach first grade. She will succeed Miss Ruth Kerr who has taken employment at Walnut School.

John Florence, Washington superintendent, said Wednesday that Miss Collins' employment completes the school's 1941-42 staff.

Ashville Children Play Role in Aluminum Drive

Ashville, Phone 79

We are giving below a list of the youngest defense workers, who in the last week have visited many homes, gathering aluminum pieces with fine success, having secured a great truck load of it. A couple of the leading workers were: Sue Nance, age 10, 180 pieces; Charles Messick, age 8, 131 pieces. Others of the working force were: Sarah Imbler, Martha Curry, David Six, Loy Six, Bob Glick, Billie Glick, Evelyn Bevens, Max Marion, Jack Irwin, James Irwin, Mary Fudge, Dick Fudge, Carolyn Fudge, Bryan Grant, Buddy Nance, Neal Leatherwood, Gale Leatherwood, Bob Stough, Shirley Stough, Helen Irwin, Margaret Nance. A fine bunch of live workers these and in the near future an ice cream party is to be given for them as part pay for their splendid work. Mrs. Nance, their leader, told us.

The V. F. W., Fred Hines' band, will give no concert here Saturday evening, being in an engagement at the Marcy church social tomorrow, Thursday evening, and all day Saturday at the Commercial Point Home coming. Our Fresh Air picture show will be at it again tomorrow evening.

Edwin Irwin has purchased from Mrs. Dora Baum her dwelling property on East Main Street. Possession given in the near future.

The prospective Ashville Athletic Club organization people will hold another meeting at the village council chamber, this Friday evening.

Rev. Fudge, wife and children, Carolyn, Mary and Dick are vacationing up in Michigan for a couple of weeks.

The local Crites Cannery began operations this afternoon starting on the corn pack.

Mrs. Ethel Fridley and Mrs. Harry Trego have returned home from their visit with Karl Kraft and family at Freeport, Ill. Mrs. Fridley and Mrs. Kraft are sisters, daughters of our S. C. Allison. Mr. Kraft is manager of a 5 and 10 cent store at the above named town. He has been connected with this line of work and merchandise for near twenty years, the start being at Columbus. His firm is now building for him a new and larger store room. He is a home youngster being graduated from the local high school in 1914. C. E. Staley, superintendent.

Mrs. Fred L. Thomas, the former Judith Schlegel, is here from

This Wednesday morning, the Misses Helen Bowers and Kathryn Baum, Mrs. Vera Tosca and children, Joan, Harold and Gene, left for Old Orchard, Maine, where they will spend the month of August returning in time for school. Mr. Tosca is there as an instructor and manager of bowling.

Jack and Jim Irwin, sons of Ed and Mrs. Irwin, are visiting with their grandparents J. S. and Mrs. Irwin and E. J. Ladd at Leesburg, Ohio. . . . C. B. Morrison and wife of here, Robert Morrison, wife and little Miss Connie Jo of Columbus, have returned from their trip to Cortland, New York, where they were guests at the home of Bram and Mrs. Simpson, the son-in-law and daughter of the first named Morrisons. On the return part of the trip they took time out to visit for a short time with our Sam Hummel who is making his home at Montour, Falls, N. Y., with his son-in-law and daughter, the Wrights. Mr. Hummel would be pleased to come back home for a visit, but is too feeble to endure the trip, having been stricken with paralysis within the past year. He is near 87 years of age.

GRASSHOPPERS CAUSE DAMAGE IN COUNTY AREA

Grasshoppers are causing considerable damage in the county, County Agent F. K. Blair reported Wednesday.

The insects attack green leaves and plants and are particularly destructive during hot dry weather, the county agent said. Farmers may combat grasshoppers by spreading a jison mash around the plants where the insects appear to be working.

The mash may be made in small quantities by mixing a quart of bran with one level tablespoonful of Paris green or white arsenic and adding two tablespoonfuls of syrup and a pint of water.

To cover a half acre of ground, five pounds of bran may be added to ¼ pound of Paris green or white arsenic, plus a pint of syrup and three quarts of water.

Mix the Paris green and the bran dry. Stir the syrup into the water. Pour the sweetened liquid over the poisoned bran and mix thoroughly. Scatter the mixture thinly where the insects are feeding. Apply in the evening or

112th Medical Regiment's Commander Says Nearly All Agree

COORDINATION IMPORTANT

Men Want To Return Home, But Admit Necessity Of Perfection

The need for additional army training for selectees, national guardsmen and reservists was stressed Tuesday by Colonel Harry D. Jackson, commanding officer of the 112th Medical Regiment training at Camp Shelby, as he prepared to return to camp after a furlough at his home here.

"As much as all of us would like to return home after a year in camp," Colonel Jackson said, "nearly all of us believe that additional training is imperative. It is easy to train a man as an individual in a year's time, but modern warfare is not conducted along lines of single units. The legions of Adolf Hitler have gained their victories through perfect coordination of all fighting forces, and not by the outstanding work of any individuals. That is the reason more training is necessary."

Colonel Jackson has headed the 112th Medical Regiment for 10 years after succeeding the late Colonel H. H. Snively.

"The boys naturally want to return home," he added, "but most of them know that our training as coordinated outfits has not been completed and cannot be completed for at least six months."

He spoke a word for Circleville boys who are training at Camp Shelby, when he said: "All of our boys are doing splendid work, and Circleville should be proud of the youths representing it at Shelby."

Colonel Jackson expressed the belief that it would be folly to muster out the troops now in training, declaring that a year's work would be wasted if such a step were taken.

Pickaway County Outdoors.

Representatives from Pickaway County's 4-H Clubs will be among the older 4-H Club members from all over the state to attend the annual 4-H conservation camp to be held August 10 to 15 at Camp Ohio. The local representatives still have not been selected.

The camp is under the supervision of W. H. Palmer, state club leaders, and R. D. Barden, Ohio State University specialist in agricultural engineering. It's five day program is devoted to a study of conservation of human and natural resources. The delegates, between the ages of 15 and 21, will be chosen because they have shown special aptitude or interest in these subjects.

G. W. McCullough, Minneapolis, wildlife technician, is the speaker Sunday evening and his talk provides a background for the specific topics to be discussed through the week. Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., Worthington, in talking Monday on human salvage, draws facts from long experience. Fred Sweet, editor, Mt. Gilead Union Register, discusses human resources Monday night.

The University agronomy department and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service have charge Tuesday and have arranged field trips to the E. H. Stradley and the A. R. Pound farms where erosion control practices are being successfully used. O. R. Keyser, Stark county agricultural agent, will show the motion picture he made and which he calls, "Saving the Soil for Son."

The importance of water in the conservation scheme will be called to the campers' attention Wednesday by Dr. Wilbur Stout, state geologist, and by Virgil Overholt, University specialist in agricultural engineering. The forests' part in saving water and preventing soil erosion while furnishing a farm income at the same time will be told Tuesday night by J. Alfred Hall, Columbus, director, Central State Forest Experiment Station.

Game and fish management are the topics handled by the Ohio Division of Conservation and Resources Thursday under the direction of A. W. Short, chief, game management section.

The club members themselves arrange the program Friday forenoon. Elective study courses in safe use of firearms, first aid, photography, nature study, archery, casting, and life saving will be taught by competent instructors each afternoon. The daily schedule also provides time for swimming, games, group singing, and vesper services.

STIMSON SORRY FOR HIS SLAP AT SEN. WHEELER

WASHINGTON, July 30—Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., leading non-interventionist, today had the apology of Secretary of War Stimson for charging the senator with deliberately circularizing soldiers against extension of the service of draftees.

In a formal statement late yesterday, Stimson expressed regrets for making the accusation and for declaring that Wheeler's activities were "near treason."

The fiery Montanan said that the war secretary's move was "a very decent thing for him to do."

Stimson said in his statement, however, that several hundred of the circulars sent out by Wheeler reached soldiers instead of the three claimed by Wheeler. His statement follows:

"An inquiry now being made by the War Department of the post offices of the largest cantonments of the Army indicates that not three, but at least several hundred of the circulars sent out by Senator Wheeler did reach soldiers of the U. S. Army."

"The inquiry has also developed evidence of organized attempts by other persons to arouse disloyalty on the part of the soldiers in the cantonments toward the training plans of their officers. The danger to the National Defense of such attempts is obvious and will receive the careful attention of the department."

"On the basis of Senator Wheeler's statement in the Senate as to the time and methods of the issuance of his circular, I believe that he has shown the absence of any intent on his part to circularize the soldiers in the training camps."

82 NEW STATE LAWS IN FORCE IN NEXT MONTH

Marriage Health Action To Take Effect On August 18

All Walks Of Life Covered By Legislation Voted By Assembly

Citizens of Circleville and Pickaway County will begin to feel the full impact of the 1941 legislative session in August when 82 new laws become effective.

There is no bride-to-be, no dentist, no pharmacist, no lawyer, and no milk dealer who will not be affected by the legislation.

Nor will there be any dealer in fake slugs for vending machines, or any banker, insurance man or coal dealer who can afford to ignore these new acts.

Previously this year, only 64 new laws became operative and these were distributed over seven months.

82 More Month Later

But in August the 82 statutes will begin to make themselves felt. They will be followed by 82 more in September, one more in October and two next January.

They are all part of 1,046 bills introduced in the ninety-fourth general assembly, of which 231 were passed and six were vetoed by Gov. John W. Bricker.

Of those passed, 123 originated in the House and 108 in the Senate. There were 666 introduced in the House and 380 thrown into the Senate's legislative hopper.

Of the 82 measures taking effect in August five become operative on the first day of the month.

Thereafter only 13 days out of the 31 in the month will pass without some new law taking effect and of these 13 five are Sundays when they couldn't legally become operative anyway.

The reason so many laws take effect so long after the adjournment of May 27 lies in a Constitutional provision that they become statutes 90 days after being signed by the governor.

License Bill Vital

Most noteworthy of the 82 bills, of course, is the marriage health action which becomes law on August 18. It requires physical examination of couples intending to wed in order to determine whether they have any social disease.

Incidentally this bill will boost the cost of marriage. At present, cupid's victims pay only $1 for a license. After August 18 the license and filing fee for medical certificates will be $2.

To this must be added the physician's fee, which is expected to be $3 to $5 a person, depending on how well the blushing couple know the "Doc."

Next in line are two house bills for control and licensing of milk dealers and distributors and specifying that milk must be retailed in quart, half-pint, pint, quart, two quart and gallon containers.

This second measure plainly states that each container must be filled at least to the base of its lip. Strict provisions for natural error are laid down.

Every motorist in the state will be affected by a measure permitting use of new license plates on March 1 and thereafter.

Coal dealers will come in for their share of attention with requirement that weight laws be enforced. Warehousemen and food dealers, after August 14, will be required to stamp on the containers the date when food is placed in storage.

Lawyers will be concerned with the establishment of a commission to set up rules of practice and procedure before all state boards, bureaus and commissions.

When it comes down to keeping people happy by giving them a full stomach, there are two bills becoming operative. One gives local governments power to issue tax anticipation notes in order to participate in the good stamp plan of the federal surplus commodities administration. The other extends certain laws to poor relief districts.

Bankers are affected by laws

She Marries

PRETTY Mary Kelly, a model, and Lieut. Milton F. Untermeyer Jr., son of the millionaire broker, were married at Fort Sill, Okla., where he is attending an officers' training school. Untermeyer Sr., recently was the victim of a stabbing during a party in his Kenelon, N. J., home. The bride is from Red Bank, N. J.

Building and apartment house owners are involved in provisions for only one means of egress of certain types of buildings as well as half a dozen measures relating to taxation.

Even the lowly newspaper man is given his share of consideration and comes off pretty well. After August 6 he may legally conceal his sources of information without subjecting himself to contempt of court proceedings for refusal to testify.

In this respect his relationships with sources of information are given the same status as exists between lawyer and client, physician and patient, or priest and parishoner.

Among the other measures taking effect are those dealing with inheritance taxes against people in other states, establishment of medical care plans, establishment of joint township hospitals, the practice of dentistry, college courses at Wilberforce university, loans and sizes of vehicles using the public highways, abolition of fireworks, sale of slugs that fit coin or vending machines, and dozens of others, not to mention revision of the fish and game laws and new statutes applying to fishing in Lake Erie, which every angler will want to know about.

And so it goes in Ohio, which was only one of 40 states that held legislative sessions in 1941 while the national congress was busy down in Washington.

SALVAGE DRIVE TO BE STARTED THROUGH STATE

COLUMBUS, July 30 — With the state's aluminum salvage drive completed, Ohioans today launched a three point program to aid defense by scrapping old automobiles and collecting scrap steel.

Representatives of scrap metal dealers from all quarters of the state met in Columbus with representatives of the federal government to formulate a definite program.

It is to begin with:

1. Scrapping of old automobiles, particularly those made before 1932.
2. Collection of old and disused farm machinery and all other forms of broken and useless scrap iron and steel found on farms.
3. A campaign among small industries to collect and market the scrap metal that has been lying about the premises for some time.

Unlike the aluminum campaign, the drive for scrap iron will be conducted only among those persons and places known to have scrap metal. The aluminum campaign embraced the entire public.

A preliminary meeting was held last week at which the Ohio Committee for Auto Wrecking was formed. Today's meeting was called for the purpose of getting action.

According to R. C. Allen, deputy chief of the office of production management, about 30,000,000 tons of scrap iron and steel are needed annually to keep the nation's production of ingots even with the 82,000,000 ton rate set during the first six months of 1941.

This means, he said, that scrap collections must be boosted at least 25 percent.

Edward A. France Jr., of the office of price administration, said a ceiling of $20 a ton for No. 1 heavy melting scrap delivered at Pittsburgh would be maintained.

Automobile scrap is generally regarded as No. 2 heavy melting, which means that the fenders and bodies must be pressed into bales and the frames cut up.

Those called to today's meeting included Nate Worshil of Canton; Joseph Silverstein, Carey; Ben Caplan, Cleveland; Louis Brandt, Columbus; Harry Kraner, Crestline; John Ponti, Dover; J. J. McGuire, Elyria; Joe Edelman, Lima; Ben Solomon, Toledo; R. S. Waters, Washington C. H.; Al Wieser, Cincinnati and one representative of wrecking companies in Steubenville and Chillicothe.

Representatives of other groups are expected to be called later.

POLICE LOCATE AUTO USED FOR GIRL KIDNAPING

CELINA, July 30 — Police reported today that the car used in the kidnaping of 17-year-old Betty Hauk, of Celina, had been located at Decatur, Ind., but that no clues as to the identity of the girl's abductor had been found.

The pretty high school girl was reported recovering today although still unable to give a clear description of the man who locked her companion, Urban Kaup, 20, of Coldwater, in a corn crib after forcing him to drive from Celina to Mendon at the point of a gun.

The young couple was accosted as they were parked at the edge of Grand Lake in Celina about midnight Sunday. After locking Kaup in a corn crib, the kidnaper drove with the girl about the country-side for nearly four hours before pushing her from the car two blocks from her home in Celina, police were told.

OIL LINE BREAK CAUSES WRECK OF NEW PLANE

SANDUSKY, July 30 — A broken oil line which caused the motor to freeze in air today was blamed for the destruction of a new plane just north of nearby Berlin Heights.

The pilot, Norman Heidger, 30, of Saginaw, Mich., was taken to Memorial Hospital in neighboring Norwalk where his condition was reported as serious.

Heidger attempted to land with a dead motor, but overshot a field and as he went over a gulley a down draft pulled the plane to the earth, witnesses said.

The pilot had just taken possession of the new plane at Alliance, O., and was flying it to Saginaw.

If you are growing brussels sprouts in your home garden for the first time, do not be dismayed if the first pickings are lacking in flavor. You will find that the first pickings are not as tasty as you may expect; the later ones will have more flavor.

Brussels sprouts suggestions

CANTON PACING OHIO INDUSTRY BOOST IN 1941

COLUMBUS, July 30 — Ohio industrial employment is 25 percent ahead of last year, with Canton setting the pace, the Ohio State University bureau of business research announced today.

The report, covering the month of May is the latest to be issued and shows a two percent improvement in that month.

Classified by industries, manufacturing led the list with a two percent gain in June, bringing it to 31 percent over last year. Non-manufacturing was up six percent over last year and construction, 45 percent.

Gains in the eight chief cities were Akron, 35 percent; Canton, 51; Cincinnati, 20; Cleveland, 28; Columbus, 23; Dayton, 27; Toledo, 23, and Youngstown, 20.

WHITEHALL, N. Never before has this bush played such a prank, Mr. Hurtubis said and the explanation for this mixture is for a botanist.

GUERNSEY BREEDERS TO MEET AT KENMAR FARM

The South Central Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association will hold its summer field day at Kenmar Hills Farm Thursday, August 7. The farm is located four miles west of Lancaster on Route 188. There will be entertainment for everyone and a three division judging contest for men, women and children as a feature of the afternoon. Some prizes will be given to the winners in each division, and the high individual will receive a grand prize. Gail Heffner, of near Ashland, O., will be the official judge. Huber Denlinger, of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders Association will also be present for the day. A basket dinner will be enjoyed at the noon hour.

Temporary relief from the heat came Tuesday afternoon when a wind and rain storm dropped temperatures from 97 to 76 degrees between 2:30 and 4:30. A hard rain was reported north of Circleville but the official rain gauge at the disposal plant showed no reading. Weatherman Ervin Leist said.

The Scioto River stage jumped a few inches following Tuesday's shower, but was receding Wednesday. The barometer pointed to unsettled weather Wednesday, an indication that local showers may come Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

MARIETTA, July 30 — Many Marietta cellars still were flooded

Library Notes

How to Develop a Good Memory—by R. H. Nutt. A practical manual that attempts to show how one can develop by means of association a dependable memory for names, faces, speeches, sales talks, and details of all sorts no matter how bad a memory one may think he has. This volume is divided into two sections. Section One: This shows you how you can be sure of remembering the necessary details of daily life according to the author's "Mental Filing System" which is the basis of the book. Section Two: This section is devoted to the author's method of remembering the names and faces of people—even those one meets in a casual way.

The Time Is Now—by Pierre Van Paassen. Van Paassen's recent publication, says a reviewer in the Booklist, "may be classed, according to different political views, as alarmist war propaganda or as honest warning, but coming from a man as well informed as the author of Days of Our Years, and an avowed opponent of war, it can not be ignored. He sums up Hitler's campaign, its announced objectives and its progress, and declares bluntly that the menace to America is neither vague nor remote. 'We stand in immediate and mortal danger now.' Hitler is about to control the oceans by marching around them and holding ports and shipyards; America must stop him now."

Darkness At Noon—by Arthur Koestler. A story of the famous Moscow trials in which the characters are fictitious but the historical events which determine their actions are real. It is a psychological novel portraying the conflict between the individual and the State—in this instance the State is Russia and the individual a young communist who has been expelled from the party for being too critical.

Adventures of a White-Collar Man—by Alfred P. Sloan Jr. The autobiography of the leader of General Motors who tells of his rise from a job as draftsman in a grimy Newark factory to his present position. The book is packed with reminiscences and intimate details concerning men and events during the days of industrial expansion and Detroit's growth in becoming a center for the automobile industry. It carries an introduction by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Soong Sisters—by Emily Hahn. A biography of three famous modern Chinese women, Mrs. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the father of the Chinese revolution, Mrs. Kung, wife of China's financial wizard, and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Generalissimo. Charlie Soong, the sisters' father, his American friendships and associations, and his work with Sun Yat-sen begin the story.
The book is also an informal story of the Chinese revolution in which members of the family had different parts.

Jewels and Gems—by L. S. Mc-

COBB WINS, AND SO DOES U. S. O. IN GOLF MATCH

DETROIT, July 30 — Ty Cobb held the victory today, Babe Ruth had the laughs, and the United Service Organizations had additional funds to spend for the recreation of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors.

Cobb was all concentration yesterday at the Grosse Ile Country Club where he won the third and deciding match in his golf feud with Ruth, three and two. Meanwhile, the Bambino enjoyed himself with repartee to the delight of 2,500 fans whose ticket money went into coffers of the USO.
Each player entered the match with one previous victory.
While Ruth's playing ran true to form with powerful hitting on the long shots, Cobb proved the steadier on the greens. Ruth took the lead on the first hole when Cobb collected a six, but the "Georgia Peach" evened matters on the third and went out in front on the fifth, never trailing after that. At the turn Cobb had a 42, while Ruth needed 46.

TOKYO, July 30 — Japanese newspapers centered their editorial fire on the United States and the Dutch East Indies today, accusing the Batavia government of trying to align itself with America and Britain against Nippon.

Nichi Nichi denounced the East Indies embargo on oil shipments to Japan and remarked:

"The old embargo by the Dutch East Indies against Japan is an insult which will soon have to be dealt with, not in a manner of economic reprisals, but in a political sense."

War Coming Nearer

The newspaper Miyako warned that American policy in the Far East is bringing war nearer with every step. Another paper, Hochi, said Japan is preparing countermeasures to be applied in full force at a moment's notice.

Japanese troops yesterday took over still more strategic bases in French Indo-China, but the number of troops occupying the coun-

40,000 Japanese troops have been landed in Indo-China.)

Hochi said the Japanese government is calmly watching American, British and Dutch East Inis ready to strike back in kind.

the 48-hour U-boat chase in which 19 enemy merchant ships totalling 116,500 tons were sunk were announced in Berlin today.

The battle, which covered a wide area, finally netted a number of ships not included in the original convoy which was selected as a target.

German reconnaissance planes first sighted the convoy west of the Bay of Biscay. An auxiliary cruiser directed movements of the zigzagging destroyers and protecting gunboats.

In a concentrated attack, German U-boats first torpedoed a big tanker, which set afire and abandoned, it was said. While escort ships dropped depth charges, the merchant ships scattered and attempted to escape, but were attacked incessantly for two days and two nights.

Finally, it was said, the entire group of vessels was sunk or dispersed.

POLES AND REDS SIGN NEW PACT AGAINST REICH

LONDON, July 30—Soviet Russia and the Polish government in exile have signed an agreement of collaboration, it was officially announced today.

One of the terms of the agreement is repudiation by Russia of the German-Soviet partition of Poland in 1939.

The Polish government, on its part, declared that Poland will not be bound by any previous agreement with any third power directed against the Soviet Union.

By terms of the agreement, the two governments mutually agree to render to one another "aid and support of all kinds in the present war against Hitlerite Germany."

Russia also agrees to the formation of a Polish army on Soviet territory. This army will be under the orders of a Polish commander, appointed by the Polish government.

OPM TAKES STEP TO END STRIKE IN GOTHAM AREA

NEW YORK, July 30—Concern ed over impact of the New York Electrical Workers' strike on the rearmament program, the Office of Production Management today took a hand in strike settlement efforts.

At the request of OPM Directors William Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, officials of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. of L.) flew to Washington to discuss a possible mediation formula.

Simultaneously, other local officers of the union were enroute to Chicago to lay the problem before the A. F. of L. executive committee headed by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., who has pledged all aid in furthering the National Defense effort.

Thus, four federal agencies plus the parent body of the union itself sought to end the strike of 8,000 workers which has tied up approximately 1,000 construction jobs involving hundreds of millions of dollars throughout New York City.

PRESIDENT ASKS RIGHT TO SET UP PRICE CONTROL

WASHINGTON, July 30—Warning that "we face inflation unless we act decisively and without delay," President Roosevelt today asked Congress to give him arbitrary controls over prices and rents.

The chief executive advised the legislators that "our national safety demands" that laws be enacted at once to extend, clarify and strengthen the administration's authority.

Mr. Roosevelt laid the case on the table in simple words. He disclosed that the United States is now spending more than $30,000, 000 a day on defense.

"This rate must and will increase," he said.

Against this gigantic expenditure Mr. Roosevelt asserted, an ever-increasing civilian demand is growing up for non-defense goods of which there are only a limited supply because of the defense program. The President said that price control is necessary to prevent profiteering and speculation in this field.

ASSAULT CHARGED

Mrs. Mack Tigner, 32, 383 Logan Street, was released on $200 bond Wednesday following her hearing on assault charges in Mayor W. B. Cady's court. The charges against Mrs. Tigner were filed by Mrs. Doris Jackson, of Circleville.

It is supposed that the modern

Rheumatism Pain Needless... Relief in 7 to 10 minutes

When a man has rheumatism so badly that it is downright agony even to move, and then he suddenly finds relief in a complete freedom from pain, the chances are that he has learned the secret of MUSCLE-RUB.

Thousands of other people—by word-of-mouth recommendation—seem to have found complete relief through this new discovery. So far as the painful part of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, lameness of muscles, bones and joints is concerned, you may forget it with the first application of MUSCLE-RUB. Relief actually comes in 7 to 10 minutes. Chronic cases and those usually severe will, of course, re-
while, but isn't it wonderful that the relief you seek is now so easily obtained?

We urge only that you make this test.
MUSCLE-RUB is now obtainable at any drug store. Buy it today. Use one-half the bottle, and if you are not amazed and de-

OPTION TO RENEW

A great deal is being said to the effect that to hold the draftees after their 12 months service has expired would be a "breach of contract."

On the other hand President Roosevelt says no breach of contract is involved. It seems plain as day that the President is right. There may be other reasons why the men should be permitted to return home, as there were reasons whether they should have been drafted in the first place, Willkie concurring. But to assert that to hold them is a "breach of contract" is either ignorance or demagoguery with which this column will have nothing to do.

The draft law specifically provides that the men should serve twelve months "except that whenever the Congress has declared that the national interest is imperiled, such 12 months period may be extended by the President to such time as may be necessary in the interests of national defense." That was an option to renew. It was part of the contract. If the option is executed in good faith there be no breach of contract.

I say this as one who did not favor the conscription act when passed. It seemed then, and seems now, that if we propose to defend America alone, and not Russia, Greece, China, Ethiopia, Egypt, Iraq, Iran and other parts of the British Empire, that what we needed was not a mass army, but a small professional army—say of half a million—magnificently equipped and paid wages at least comparable to firemen and policemen. We said so last fall.

It is plain now that we do not have a well equipped army, big or small, and that one reason is that our few trained officers have had to be spread out over a huge mass of men like a pat of butter over a whole loaf.

If we really mean national defense, that is one thing, and requires one kind of an army. If our true mission, however, is to fight for the "four freedoms" wherever they can be located, that is another matter, and should be stated.

So we come to the true nub of the question. From the standpoint of national defense we appear incomparably better able to defend than when the draft act was passed. Britain is stronger, except for ship sinkings. Her Empire has not yet lost a square yard of territory anywhere in the world. And a year ago it was not known but that Russia might furnish troops as well as supplies to Germany, Italy and Japan in a common totalitarian assault on the Anglo-Saxon world.

It is now plain that Russia will either conquer Germany, or if conquered, the effort will weaken Germany immeasurably and that a double-crossing Hitler will have at his back 171,000,000 Russians, skilled in Asiatic treachery and sabotage, in addition to the seething millions in Norway, Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Greece, if not in Italy itself.

The true question therefore is not whether the option to renew can legally be made in the interests of "national defense." The men in the army and their fathers and mothers have the moral right to expect that the option to renew will not be exercised unless necessary.

SEIZURE OF JAP FISHING BOATS HITS ESPIONAGE

19 Vessels Active In Area Around Hawaii Grabbed
By U. S. Treasury

Widespread Nipponese Acts
In Pacific Charged
By Government

WASHINGTON, July 30—Seizure by the United States of a fleet of 19 Japanese fishing vessels in Hawaiian waters on suspicion of espionage was revealed today by the U. S. Treasury.

The vessels were secretly taken into American custody by the coast guard on charges that their masters violated U. S. navigation laws and falsified registry of the boats.

The case came to light in a report to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau from his chief coordinator of the treasury's far-flung enforcement agencies, Elmer L. Irey.

While there was no previous inkling of the seizures, the report, covering the agencies wide-spread activities for this year, disclosed that the boats were taken over in late February and kept confidential until today.

Six Forfeited

Six of the vessels have been forfeited to the United States government while the remainder are being held at Honolulu.

Japanese naval reserve officers were on the fishing boats when they were boarded by the coast guard and the smacks were equipped with auxiliary motors.

As an outgrowth of the seizures, federal indictments were returned in the Honolulu district court in March against 71 Japanese, mostly aliens, and three Honolulu fishing companies.

The citations charged conspiracy to violate American navigation laws, falsification of registry statements and income tax evasion, but officials believed spying was involved.

The American government has long suspected the Japanese fishing fleet of engaging in espionage, not only in the Pacific Isles, but along the entire Pacific Coast.

Irey said that none of the Nipponese boats met requirements of American laws which specify that vessels under U. S. registry must be owned by American citizens.

Long months of investigation, directed by William Jennings Bryan Jr., customs collector at Los Angeles, revealed that the Japanese had registered their ships under the names of American-born wives, children and other relatives.

"In some instances," Irey reported, "these Japanese lived in Japan, in others they made regular trips to Japan, ostensibly to get medical treatment or to take the baths." Another "suspicious thread" in the inquiry, he added, was the financing of the boats by the three fishing companies—the Pacific Fishing Co., Ltd., Honolulu Fishing Co., Ltd., and the Hawaii Suisan Kaisha, Ltd.

The companies, it was revealed, mortgaged some of the vessels with mortgages "too heavy for individual owners to carry."

Blanket Names Used

One device used to conceal the true ownership of the boats, informed sources said, was use of "blanket names," a common practice among the Japanese. The name "Kasuga Maru" was designated to four ships, and the names "Tenjin Maru," "Kujo Maru," and "Nippon Maru" were given two ships each.

Irey said the coordinated efforts of the Customs Agency Service, the Coast Guard and intelligence unit of the "Internal Revenue Bureau in the investigation "in view of world conditions is regarded as the most momentous case developed . . . during the fiscal year ended June 30."

SPEEDING FAMILY

driver to warn her she was exceeding the limit. Checking her driver's license, he noticed the name was familiar. In fact, she was the wife of another driver he had stopped five minutes ago on the same street—for speeding.

RUSSIAN MIRACLE

THE idea slowly sifts into American minds that the Russians might actually win this war, or at least not lose it. Strange as it seems, the notion is no more incredible that the courage and resourcefulness with which the Russians have fought. And no more incredible than the amazing preparedness revealed, in a nation that we have assumed to be superficial, incompetent and incapable of concerted action.

The Russians certainly had prepared to meet such an onslaught, although at the moment they were caught at a disadvantage by Hitler's sudden and treacherous assault. They have far more war materials than outsiders imagined. Also more military training, and better plans and discipline, than the world expected.

The German militarists, who should have known all about the situation in Russia, whether human or material, were misinformed. The Nazis are not merely fighting Russian machines and war materials; they are fighting men, and those men are proving themselves to be of a valiant breed. In spite of political tyranny, in warfare they seem more like Americans than like Germans. They are flexible and resourceful as well as patriotic. They are good individual fighters, able to improvise methods and strategy as occasion requires. And they are giving Hitler the worst headache he ever had.

BY-PASSING DAKAR

IF Uncle Sam is looking for a foothold in west Africa, to help in keeping the Atlantic Ocean safe for democracy, and finds Dakar too hard a nut to crack, he might try Liberia. That is the Negro colony established a few hundred miles south of Dakar by American philanthropy a century ago. It still maintains its independence and its gratitude to America, and would probably be very willing, to cooperate.

There is, however, no decent harbor on Liberia's sea frontage. A better bet might be Sierra Leone, which lies west of Liberia and is owned by Britain, and has the best natural harbor in West Africa. It is also nearer to Dakar, and is as near Brazil as Dakar is. Britain would doubtless be reasonable about it. We may be hearing more of that before long.

It's about time for the democracies to talk turkey to the Turks.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

AS STATE departmental chief of Uncle Sam's campaign of economic warfare against the Axis countries, Assistant Secretary Dean Acheson has the bulk of responsibility for enforcing the presidentially proclaimed Yankee blacklist of Latin-American individuals, firms and corporations which, having German or Italian affiliations, are accused of keeping trade moving between the United States and the Nazis and Fascists, to their advantage.

The blacklist probably is or soon will be pretty effective.

Pan-American Cultural Co-ordinator Nelson A. Rockefeller's outfit is said to have compiled the list of about 2,000 suspected concerns, and its sources of information appear to be fairly reliable.

With the commerce department's co-operation, our export licensing system should shut off shipments to the suspects; even if there are Yankee houses that are willing to sell to 'em, they won't be able to get licenses to make deliveries. Besides the blacklisted would-be buyers' funds in this country have been frozen.

The delicate part of Secretary Acheson's stunt is to make his blacklist stick without violently antagonizing our southern neighbors against Uncle Sam.

We don't mind hurting the feelings of some out-and-out German or Italian firm: in such a city as Rio de Janeiro or Santiago or Buenos Aires. But even concerns of this sort are apt to have native friends in neighborhoods where, perhaps, they've been doing busi-

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

U. S. CLOSES PANAMA CANAL

WASHINGTON—Secretary Stimson was telling the absolute truth when he denied that the discovery of a time-bomb was responsible for keeping ten Japanese ships out of the Panama Canal. For this was not the reason.

Real reason why the Canal was barred to the Japanese was the discovery that two of their ships were floating bazars being rushed to the east coast of South America to grab off the trade which Axis operators were forced to abandon as a result of the U. S. blacklist.

Apparently the Japs had a tip that the blacklist was going to be issued, because the two ships hastily left the west coast and were waiting to go through the Canal, when suddenly the blacklist was published. Equipped with elaborate merchandizing displays, and carrying high-powered, Spanish-speaking salesmen, the ships were literal arsenals of economic warfare. With them, the Japanese would have invaded the most lucrative markets in Latin America before either the U. S. or the Latin Americans could have moved to block them.

WOMEN'S TAX RIGHTS

Representative Frank ("Doc") Crowther of New York, high-ranking GOP member of the House Ways and Means committee, occupied the center of the stage when House Republicans caucused behind closed doors on the $3,500,000,000 defense tax bill.

However, it was Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, Ohio's charming widow legislator, who stole the show with a firebrand lecture on "Women's rights."

Crowther had just begun explaining the section of the bill requiring husbands and wives to file joint income returns, which he vigorously supported in committee, when Mrs. Bolton, who is just as vigorously opposed, jumped to her feet.

"I would like to ask the gentleman," she inquired tartly, "if any women were called before the Ways and Means committee, while this bill was being considered, to testify in defense of the American home?"

"The lofty subject to which the lady from Ohio refers was not discussed to my knowledge," grinned Crowther. "No one, man, woman or child, came before the committee and asked to be heard, though we held lengthy hearings and listened to many witnesses on various phases of the tax question."

"Well, if you had given American women a chance to be heard," shot back Mrs. Bolton, "you wouldn't have approved this outrageous joint-returns section. It takes us back to the days of feudalism, when a man was lord and master of the home and his wife was considered little more than a chattel."

Then, waving an admonishing finger at her colleagues, Mrs. Bolton continued: "This part of the tax bill is an invasion of the home. It says that a wife must pool whatever earnings she makes with her husband."

HOW ABOUT THESE?

Furthermore, plenty of purely Latin-American houses (without a drop of Axis blood in them) have long traded, profitably to themselves, with German and Italian customers. Choking THEM off doesn't make for Pan-American solidarity.

The same difficulty presented itself during the last war. It wasn't so bad then, though, because we were making no particular bid for western hemispherical good neighborliness.

For quite awhile before our blacklist was proclaimed Cultural Co-ordinator Rockefeller toiled industriously to get our inter-American trade out of the hands of pro-Axis concerns in the southern republics, and INTO the hands of concerns that like us and the democracies generally.

Co-ordinator Rockefeller and Secretary Acheson still are pushing this program. That is, whenever and wherever a firm's blacklisted, some other, friendlier firm is being urged by the first firm's elimination. The theory is that the new firm, profiting by the rearrangement, will like us so much better that it'll offset the hostility of the one we've blacklisted.

It has been stated that about 1,000 of these readjustments were effected prior to the blacklist's publication. But there were 2,000 more that wouldn't agree, so they had to be blacklisted. If the

SYNOPSIS
YLENA VARANOFF, young and pretty wife of THEODORE VINCENT, wealthy easterner, arrives in La Madera. She sends ROSE, housekeeper for VERNON STONE, the Vincent family attorney, back east to keep her informed about CARLYLE, Ylena's little daughter, who is in the custody of Vincent's mother Ylena meets two young men in La Madera. One, TATE CROMWELL, is arrogant, self-confident of his way with women. The other, SCOTT HAMILTON, is a pleasant young dude rancher.

YESTERDAY: Theodore Vincent nearly finds Ylena in Vernon Stone's office in New York, where she has arrived suddenly.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
THEODORE VINCENT wagged a finger at Lawyer Vernon Stone, after finding lipstick on the whiskey glass. "So it's a girl, huh? That's even funnier." He looked around and spotted the closed door that led to the conference room. "I'll bet she's in there. Bring her out, Vernon, old boy. Don't be so stingy." He glanced again at the coral lipstick. "A blonde, too. Yes, it has to be a blonde to wear this color." Casually he said, "I remember that Ylena used to have a lipstick about this same color."

Vernon Stone felt his throat constrict. Needless, because Vincent had a sudden new interest. "I'd like a drink myself—yes, that's what I want. As big a drink as you've served your girl friend."

The attorney hastened to fill the glass half full. With one convulsive movement Theodore downed it. Then he jerked his body to an even deeper position in his chair and said, "Yes, you've got to send me to Sunday school again, and as usual keep my mother from finding out. That's one thing I won't have her knowing about me."

"Haven't you ever once considered getting enough of a grip on yourself so that these periodic excursions no longer would be necessary? Then there would be nothing for your mother to know."

"Don't be infantile, Stone. I do dread it, though. Lord! I shiver violently."

"Don't shiver you. The cure isn't very pleasant and in your case rather useless. Just a regular fit of business that doesn't seem to take."

Slyly Theodore said, "I'm too smart for it. But it's got to get me in shape to go south with mother and the baby in December. Merry Christmas and all that, you know. She won't let me around Carlyle if I've had even a drink."

Suddenly his mouth twisted into a one-sided grin. "By the way, did you ever hear anything about old Rose?"

Stone gave a disinterested shake of the head. "I've quit looking. She's gone and that's that. Perhaps she wanted to leave me. Old people are eccentric, as you should know. And now, Theodore, I'm most busy with three important cases, so you'd better run along. I'll make the arrangements for you today. I'll telephone the—yes, Miss Forbush?" he frowningly inquired of the girl who had demanded his attentions with her interruption.

Stone's shrewd eyes flitted over the scrap of paper. "Yes, it is important. Thank you, Miss Forbush. I'll take care of it immediately." The message he tore into bits and tossed into a waste basket. "I'll make the arrangements," he began again.

Vincent mumbled, while watching the retreat of the office girl, "Yes, tell old Wetherill his star pupil will be up soon for another little gold star. That old crocodile! I'd like to cut his throat."

"You won't have to put out any more vicious thoughts toward Dr. Wetherill. I'm sending you to another place, more secretive, more exclusive. Yes, I'm sending you to a much, much better place."

Vincent's departure, verbally prodded by the attorney, brought Ylena from her hiding place in the adjoining room. Stone looked the doors against further intrusion and they were alone.

"Well, Ylena," he commanded, "what did you mean with your message to tell Theodore I was sending him to another place?"

"Because you are, but I don't know just where yet." She moved to a wide window and looked westward toward a barge puffing up the Hudson. Stone joined her. "Tell me, Vernon, how did Theodore get Rose in the first place?"

"Through mildly gangster tactics, I assume. Probably expertly conked on the head, shuffled into an automobile, driven to a hideout. That's the usual procedure." He took off gold-rimmed glasses and lightly massaged his eyelids. "You can buy hoodlums for a dime a dozen."

"Then what's the matter with you, Vernon? You've a dime, haven't you? Let's get us a dozen."

Vernon Stone gave the girl a look of unmitigated horror. "Ylena, are you suggesting that I—"

She said slyly, "I'm suggesting that you find Rose, something you'll never do through your straight-laced ethics. This is our golden opportunity. While Theodore is away in some secluded spot, perhaps up in Connecticut with a couple of competent 'doctors,' we'll use the other ten to nab Clarkson."

Vernon's breath escaped forcefully through his teeth. With complete awe he looked into the girl's earnest face. "Good heavens, Ylena, you play more surprises on a person than Thurston in his prime. The West certainly has done something for you—why, you're the sort of woman who could kneel by a covered wagon and pop redskins into the dust."

Ylena spread her hands and shrugged loftily. "First you think the day coach isn't good enough for me, and now you have me in a covered wagon—but you're right. I am learning to fight. I've learned it from Scott Hamilton. He has given me courage."

Quietly, Stone said: "Are you sure it isn't love?"

"Heavens, no! I'm in love with Tate Cromwell—but back to help Rose. The important thing is to locate our men."

Vernon began to stammer, "But how?" Where—who—"Then his mouth stilled. 'Bon-Bon Scion!' I saved him from the chair. Years ago, and naturally he's always wanted to do me a favor." He went to his private phone. "I'll call him."

Clarkson strutted. He always had. Even in his most servile moments, he strutted. Even in church! Ylena, on her knees toward the rear of the cathedral, watched him enter and make his way to a pew directly before the altar. toned skin, long dark lashes down-cast over the green eyes that might possibly reveal her identity, and reddened lips moving in prayer.

At first Ylena could not decide what made Clarkson look so different, then realized that his sober butler-valet attire had been replaced by a business suit and topcoat of stripes, dashing certainly, gaudy almost in the candle-lighted tranquility of the lofty cathedral.

Undeniably he was on very close terms with heaven. His respects took such a short time. Out of the corner of her eye, Ylena caught the smug look on his narrow face as he walked past her. Then she followed him out. He was stepping into a maroon and chromium coupe—MY car, she thought. Quickly, she glided across the pavement and slid into a nondescript tinny affair of rusty black.

To the bulky, gigantic shouldered driver she said, "There he is. I hope you can keep up with him."

"Lady," her companion assured, "we'll keep up if I have to get out and carry this aspirin box."

Despite his avowal, it was quite a race. In the slight traffic lull of a Sunday mid-morning, Clarkson drove swiftly. Tires zinged as he turned corners. After a few minutes Ylena forgot her fear that he might notice their pursuit, for she gradually became aware that he had no apprehensions. Why should he? He was living in a world of glorious intoxication based on a vicarious power. King for the time being, Little Bantam Clarkson. A swashbuckler!

He circled about the palatial apartments on the East river and then on to the unfashionable, rough section where he suddenly swerved to a halt before an old brownstone house. On the high steps a large, beefy looking man sat smoking a cigar. Instantly he leaped to his feet, tossed the stub aside and lifted his hand to Clarkson in what was almost a salute. Clarkson, dapper monarch, acknowledged the homage with a brief nod and trotted up the steps to disappear inside.

Ylena leaned far to her side and sweetly peered over her shoulder as they continued their swift pace. The big man had paid no attention to them; he was lighting a fresh cigar. The girl glanced at the top floor of the decrepit building and saw that the windows were boarded.

"That proves it," she said to the driver. "She's there, all right."

"What do we do now?" he asked eagerly.

"Nothing until next Sunday. We need time to make plans." He looked into his hybrid face, working with disappointment.

He drew a breath that was practically asthmatic with rage. "You mean I gotta wait a whole week to find out what makes that fat little wart tick—listen, lady, I don't want no dough. I'll work on that guy for pleasure."

Swimming Gives Best All-Around Exercise

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● Swimming, as we mentioned recently, is the best natural all-around exercise. Walking is a natural form of exercise, but it does not exercise the arms, trunk, or shoulders very much. I suppose climbing trees could be called a natural form of exercise which does exercise the muscles of the trunk and arms, but it requires a little too much agility for most of us. But swimming gets to practically every muscle in the body.

Swimming, however, is sometimes followed by some disagreeable and even serious consequences, as Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, of Jacksonville, Florida, has pointed out in a valuable series of studies on how poorly adapted man is for an aquatic existence.

Protective Devices

Warm blooded animals which normally lead a semi-aquatic and under water life have been provided by nature with protective devices. The hippopotamus has, instead of rigid openings into the nose, a pair of slide which can be closed and opened voluntarily and are closed when the hippo submerges.

Diving birds, such as the frigate bird, have membranous flaps that close the nasal openings. The alligator is provided with similar mechanisms, and these can be moved by voluntary muscles to cover or uncover the openings.

Water Enters Nose

Man, of course, has no such mechanism. And as a consequence water enters the nose during diving and under water swimming, depriving the mucous membrane of the inside of the nose of its protective reactions to infection and resulting in many cases a year of sinus disease and infection of the middle ear.

As proof of this the striking remark of Dr. Paul Mahoney, of Little Rock, is—"I have never seen a professional swimmer whose nasal mucosa did not resemble the appearance of a dishwasher's hands."

Dr. Taylor advocated the continuous forcing of air bubbles out of the nose after the diver hits the water and during under water swimming.

Diving and Colds

Dr. David Mezz, of Brooklyn, however, who has made equally valuable experimental studies on the subject, does not believe that nasal exhalation or combined exhalation to hold back water is effective in preventing water from entering the nose. He quoted the experiments of Hasty to show that in pools during the time of swimming, the water represents the combined washings of the nasal mucous membrane of every swimmer.

Feet-first diving, repeated diving and backstroke swimming are the worst offenders in exposing the nose to deluges of water.

Chilling of the body surface is also a factor in producing nose and ear infections.

Dr. Mezz has devised a rubberized nose clip to close the nasal openings and recommends it for swimmers and divers, especially those who tend to catch cold easily.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. A. S.: "Will you tell what causes the heart to skip a beat every few minutes? There is no pain. Would it be from gas?"

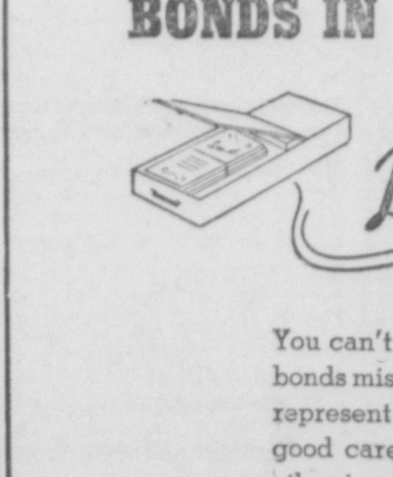

Answer: Skipping pulse is so common in people over forty as to be normal. It does not harm. The skipped beat is really a premature beat and called an extrasystole.

Answer: I'm afraid not. At least I know of no successful example.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Radioactive Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Temperament," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, July 30

A RATHER routine state of affairs is read from the prevailing planetary influences. The personal rather than business interests seem to occupy the attention, although public affairs of a social, humane, fraternal of community aspect, may succeed through cleverness, secret or tacit understandings, in which large corporations or organizations have prominent part. Such affiliation may develop peculiar or surprising angles, in which new ideas or problems are advanced by social, artistic or sentimental factors rather than strictly business tenets. But be alert to dubious entanglements or quarrels.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly active year, in which the personal equation may overshadow strictly commercial interests. Public, community or group action in connection with humanitarian, cultural or charitable organizations should prosper, especially if new ideas or novel forms of promotion be employed. But keep alert to peculiar or unexpected entanglements or duplicity and also shun tempest and confused or rash acts.

A child born on this day may have many interesting or uncommon talents which it may put to use for the public welfare, in social, educational or cultural lines. It may attain success by originality and engaging personality.

LOMBARDO'S SERIES

Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, top favorites of dancers and listeners for the past ten years, will present a new and original series of Saturday night musical programs starting August 2nd. Emanating from New York City, the Saturday half-hours will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m.

"BLIND ALLEY"

"Blind Alley," will be the next "Great Moments From Great Plays" broadcast produced and adapted by Charles Martin Friday, at 8 p. m. A psychological melodrama, which was seen on Broadway and on the screen, "Blind Alley" concerns a gangster who hides out in a professor's home. The latter, whose life is threatened by the unwelcome visitor, makes use of his knowledge of psychoanalysis to wear down the crook's courage and confidence. Ray Block's orchestra supplies the background music. Starting with this program Nelson Case becomes the new announcer on the series, working with Johnny the Call Boy.

HOST TO CARTER

John Carter, popular tenor, will be the guest singer on the Andre Kostelanetz program Sunday, at 7 p. m. Albert Spalding, violinist, is master of ceremonies.

RADIO BRIEFS

Reactions of listeners to the new modern American music series conducted by Frank Black indicate that the two most popular offerings to date are Meredith Willson's "Symphony No. 2 in E Minor" and a descriptive composition by a young Texan, Dan Gillis, called "The Raven."

While playing army camps Kay Kyser has been approached by a number of soldiers who told him that they appeared as contestants on his "College of Musical Knowledge" when Kay was touring the country with his broadcast unit.

REDS WIN, 7-4, OVER TERRYMEN; BUCKY TO HURL

Gene Thompson Comes To Riddle's Assistance, Pitches Fine Ball

CINCINNATI, July 30—Boasting one "gift victory" over the New York Giants, the world champion Cincinnati Reds tonight will shoot Bucky Walters at Marse Bill's boys in a night game at Crosley Field.

Walters will be after his 13th win of the season and will be opposed in the venture by Johnny Wittig, the current hot shot of the slow-moving Giants.

The Reds scored a 7-4 win over the New York Giants but it wasn't entirely their fault that they won. The Giants solved Elmer "The Great" Riddle without much difficulty and drove him to cover after three lousy frames. Riddle gave up four runs and seven hits before Junior Thompson came on the scene to halt the Giants and stick around to get the victory after the big explosion.

The champs picked up a couple of markers in the fourth on Lonnie Frey's double and singles by Frank McCormick and Ival Goodman and a long fly. Then in the fifth, the balloon went up. Four singles, two walks and two passed balls sent five runs scampering across the plate and there went the old ball game for the Giants.

Frank McCormick was the hitting star for the Reds, pounding out three singles while Frey was next with a double and a single. Mel Ott laced a homer and single for the Giants and the veteran Joe Moore connected for a double and two one-basers.

Kenny Carpenter started and was the losing hurler for the visitors.

DEMPSEY SAYS NOVA MAY WIN FROM CHAMPION

SALT LAKE CITY, July 30—Jack Dempsey, who isn't so spry as he used to be, nevertheless made a big jump today—right onto the bandwagon of Lou Nova, the kid with the "cosmic punch."

"Nova will be the next heavy-weight champion of the world," the old Manassa Mauler predicted. However, he made one important reservation in forecasting the outcome of Lou's forthcoming title bout with Champion Joe Louis. Nova has to weather the first five rounds.

Happy over this reconciliation with his wife, the former Hannah Williams, Dempsey was in Salt Lake City for a reunion with his mother, brother and two sisters. His daughters, Joan, 7, and Barbara, 5, also have arrived for a visit.

The former champion will head back to New York in ten days to join his wife. "The sailing will be smooth from now on," he promised.

GLITT OUTFIT TOPS PACKERS

Five Runs In Third Frame Do Work, With Smallwood Holding Groce Crew

A big third inning in which five runs were scored gave the Glitt Ice Cream softball crew a 6-2 victory over the Groce Packing Company outfit. The game was played Tuesday evening at the Ted Lewis Recreation Center.

The ball game was a fast one, the Packing crew getting two markers in the first frame, the Glitt's sewing it up in the third and adding another in the seventh.

Smallwood gave up four hits for the winners, while Pettibone for the losers was touched six times.

Purina Chows and Circleville Oils play Wednesday evening.

NEW YORK, July 31—A featherweight championship fight between Joey

By Jack Mahon
NEWARK, N. J., July 30 — A tough, 26-year-old red-headed Irish kid from the same block in near-by Elizabeth on which another great champion, Mickey Walker, was born, is the welterweight champion of the world today—but may go into the Army before he has a chance to defend his title.

That's the news out of this rejoicing city today as Freddie (Red) Cochrane, a 4-1 under-dog, read victory wires of congratulation for his upset of Pittsburgh's Fritz Zivic at Ruppert Stadium last night.

MILLERS MOVE FARTHER AHEAD OF A. A. CREWS

By International News Service
The Minneapolis Millers, a team of bombarding long-hitters today gave indications of pulling away from the closely-bunched teams in the first division in the hot American Association pennant race. After crushing the St. Paul Saints, 11-7 while the second place Columbus Red Birds were falling before Toledo, 7-1, the Millers held a 3½ game margin over the Birds while Louisville was third 5½ games back and Kansas City fourth 7½ games off the pace.

Fifth-place Indianapolis, the hottest team in the league at the present time, nipped Louisville last night 1-0 behind the effective six-hit pitching of Ray Starr who was turning in his 19th win of the season. In last night's other games, the Kansas City Blues trimmed the Milwaukee cellar dwellers, 13-8.

The Millers pounded out five home runs, a triple and two doubles for a total of 34 bases to rout the Saints. Fabian Gaffke hit his 19th circuit clout of the year to maintain his loop lead while Ab Wright tagged his 18th and just two back were Babe Barna and Otto Denning who hit their 16th in the bombardment of St. Paul. Frankie Trechok hit the fifth round-tripper for the loop leaders. Frank "Porky" Biscan, sensational rookie hurler for the Toledo Mud Hens, set the Columbus nine down with seven scattered bingles as his mates combed three hurlers for 10 hits and a 7-1 victory. Charley Brumbelow was the losing hurler. Milt Byrnes clubbed a homer for the Hens.

Indianapolis scored a tally in the top of the ninth to give Ray Starr a 1-0 decision over Emerson Dickman and Louisville. Kansas City snuffed out a five-run rally by the Milwaukee Brewers in the first of the ninth to win a 13-8 victory. The Blues scored six in the third.

ALL-STAR GRID ELEVEN ALMOST SET FOR AUG. 28

CHICAGO, July 30 — An all-Big Ten backfield and a line including two more Big Ten players, two stars from the east, one from the far west and one each from the south and southwest — that today appeared to be the probable lineup of the collegiate eleven which will tackle the pro champion Chicago Bears August 28 in the annual all-star football classic at Soldier Field.

Voting in the national poll to select the college starters ended last midnight, and final ballots were being tabulated today, with the official starting team to be announced tomorrow.

Indications were the collegiate starting team would lineup as follows, barring a sudden rush of votes for one or more of the runners-up in the late balloting:

Ends—Dave Rankin, Purdue, and Eddie Rucinski, Indiana; tackles—Nick Drahos, Cornell, and Ernest Pennell, Texas A. and M.; guards—Augie Lio, Georgetown, and Tommy O'Boyle, Tulane; center—Rudy Mucha, Washington; quarterback—Forest Evansheviski, Michigan; halfbacks—Tommy Harmon, Michigan, and George Franck, Minnesota; fullback—George Paskvan, Wisconsin.

In addition to the eleven starters selected by the fans, some 50 other leading college players of 1940 will be invited to join the all-star squad, which will go into training for the classic August 10 at Northwestern University.

upset of Pittsburgh's Fritz Zivic at Ruppert Stadium last night. Cochrane, after stealing a long early lead, managed to stave off Zivic's desperate closing, blood-stained rally in five, desperate final rounds to bring the first title to New Jersey since the famed Toy Bulldog won the very same 147-pound title from Jack Britton way back in 1922.

Red, a close friend of Zivic's outside the ring, had invited Fritz, the night of the champion's clinch win over Al (Bummy) Davis in New York, to a "V for victory" dinner, win or lose, after last night's bout. Zivic and his handlers regretfully refused the invitation after the biggest upset in Jersey's recent ring history.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York, who with Babe Culnan of this city staged last night's show, said the contracts called for Cochrane to give Zivic a return match within 60 days. He indicated he would put the match in New York's Madison Square Garden if everything could be worked out.

After the fight, however, as Cochrane prepared to depart for his victory party at his Hillside, N. J., tavern, it was learned, Freddie, free, white and 26, had sent in his draft questionnaire over a month ago and might very well be called to the colors within two months.

If he is, Cochrane will go into the service with his title—the first prize fighter to do so since the conscription law was passed.

Zivic was his characteristically cocky self in his dressing room. Never one to go in for explanations or long-winded alibis, the ex-champ simply stated that he felt he had been fighting too much lately and that he "just couldn't get started until it was too late" against Red. "I've fought three times in a month. That's too much," said Zivic. He added that he was very very anxious to get a return shot at Cochrane and promised there would be no disputing the outcome the next time.

Cochrane was very excited and also very modest in victory. While a mob of well-wishers and semi-mystical friends and fans flocked around his dressing room, Red, who was born just four houses on Bond Street from the home of Mickey Walker, said "I always knew I could beat Zivic if I got the chance." That was the extent of his victory speech.

The fight itself saw Cochrane amaze the crowd of about 10,000 by beating Zivic at his own game in the early rounds. Red tied up Fritz, drubbed him with uppercuts, out-fought him in close and won seven of the first ten rounds on the INS score-card.

Zivic won the last five to wind up with seven and seven with one even as we saw it, but we gave Red the fight because he won his rounds by a more convincing margin. Referee Joe Mangold called it seven for Cochrane, four for Zivic and called four even.

ALEXANDER IMPROVES
NEW YORK, July 30—Grover Cleveland Alexander's condition was reported as improving today at Bellevue Hospital, but the former star pitcher of the National League can not be described as out of danger, hospital attaches said. Alexander is suffering head injuries sustained when he fell in a downtown street last week end.

REBATES ARE UNLIKELY

Harvest In Pickaway Area Almost Completed; Good Average Reported

A Senate vote of 34 to 23 to remove penalties from excess wheat used as livestock feed or for home use on the farm led to an announcement Wednesday from the county AAA office that should the measure pass the House penalty payments coming into the local office would stop almost entirely.

One of the primary objections of local farmers to the control program, according to AAA officials, was that they were not permitted to feed their excess wheat, especially with the present high prices on livestock.

Should the 49 cent penalty be removed, practically all local farmers who had not already disposed of their excess would feed their wheat rather than pay the 49 cent a bushel penalty, which would mean that revenue from penalty payments would practically stop. There are very few farms in the county which do not have enough livestock to take care of what excess wheat the farm might have, AAA authorities pointed out.

Rebates Possible?

County Committeemen wondered, however, what would happen to the farmers who already had paid their penalty and had marketed their excess grain. As far as is known, no provision is made for rebates in such cases.

Few farmers in the county have stored their excess other than on the farms. There are several who have wheat stored at Kingston, but should the 49 cent penalty on excess wheat for livestock be removed, those farmers would be able to get their wheat back, AAA officials said.

Local officials feared that passage of such a measure would mean that they would have to "undo" much of the work already accomplished under the AAA program relating to marketing excess.

Average Good One

The wheat harvest in the county is practically finished, and its 63,000 acres of wheat have produced an estimated 1,575,000 bushels of grain. Wheat throughout the county has averaged 25 bushels to the acre, farm leaders believe. Almost 1,700 of the 1,800 marketing quota cards have been distributed to farmers, which means that most of the farmers have paid their penalties and marketed their excess, have stayed within their allotment, have agreed to store their excess or have raised less than 15 acres of wheat.

It's a pleasant change to read of a "British blitz."

Trip Detoured

POLICE OFFICERS AT WICHITA, Kan., were amazed when they found 9-year-old Barbara Hayden, above, hiding in a railway boxcar clad in high-heeled boots and cowgirl suit. Barbara told the officers that she had hoped the freight train would carry her to Hollywood—where she could be a real cowgirl.

LOANS PROVIDED TO AID FARMER START HIS CROP

Emergency loans for the production of winter wheat and other small grains, and for the purchase of feed for livestock, are now available to farmers in Pickaway County. Applications for these loans are being received in Circleville, at the office of County Agent, by Clarence Fealty, field supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks, or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs for growing 1941 winter grain crops, or purchasing feed for livestock, and in no instance may exceed $400.00.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or, in the case of loans for the purchase of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

band's income. It does not recognize her as an individual or a wage-earner, but as a subservient chattel.

Mrs. Bolton's oratorical effort won a rousing ovation from her male colleagues, but no votes. Joint returns are calculated to bring in over $300,000,000 of additional revenue.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The President's recent radio talk was one of the shortest he has ever made. It timed only 15 minutes, 30 seconds. . . . The broadcast was handled entirely by transcription. Each of the three radio networks made a "platter," or a record, and then played the record back for the radio transmission. . . . The President wasted no time when he came into the Oval Room in the White House. "Are you boys all ready?" he said, and launched into the speech without even a voice level.

"YOU'RE IN THE ARMY NOW" While there will be a lot of noisy breast-beating in the opposition, you can write this down as certain:

1. Congress will approve the retention of the National Guard and selectees in the army.

2. The House will pass the $3,500,000,000 defense tax bill in the form recommended by the Ways and Means committee.

Under the restricted debate rules of the House, action on Army retention will take only a few days. The Senate move will last longer. The isolationist-appeasement bloc will take advantage of the issue to unleash a wide-range blitz on the President's foreign policy. Central theme of this attack will be the charge that he is secretly leading the country into war.

However, while the senatorial anti will unlimber their heaviest oratorical guns, their attack will be largely a hit-and-run affair.

Privately they are not prepared to accept the President's challenge to block the legislation. They will denounce him fiercely, but they will very carefully back away from the responsibility of riddling the army. Tip-off on their tactics was Senator Burt Wheeler's conduct during the consideration of the War Department's "draft property" bill.

The Montanan clawed it from stem to stern, and then ducked out of the Senate and was nowhere around when the far-reaching measure was adopted without even a rollcall.

NEW TAX BILL

The House will pass the tax bill chiefly because the rank-and-file know little about it and Ways and Means tax measures are always approved. The process will require about a week.

But in the Senate it will be different. The Senate Finance Committee

$2,338 GRANTED TO LAND OWNER IN RT. 22 SUIT

A jury of 11 men and one woman Tuesday allowed the Nannie W. Foresman interests $2,338 in their easement case against the State Highway Department.

The total amount represented $338 for the 3.23 acres of land taken from the Foresman property for the construction of Route 22 across the land and $2,000 as compensation for damage to the remaining land.

The State Highway Department originally had offered the Foresman interests $1920 for the easement rights. It was generally believed in court circles that the Foresman interests would carry the case to a higher court, providing their motion for a new trial is overruled.

During the case the jury heard testimony from 14 witnesses, nine for the plaintiff and five for the state. Jurors deliberated slightly over two hours before making their decision. The decision was signed by all twelve of the jurors, although only nine are required in a civil action.

C. E. Dick, Monroe Township, was foreman of the jury.

will subject the bill to a microscopic scrutiny, requiring at least a month. Next the committee will start writing its own bill, which, based on past performances, is certain to differ in important details from the House measure.

CITY CAMPAIGN FOR ALUMINUM COMES TO END

Circleville closed its aluminum drive Tuesday night with an announcement from Campaign Chairman Leonard Morgan that the campaign had brought in more aluminum than had been expected.

Campaign officials placed no estimate on the amount of aluminum received, but said they would have it weighed Thursday.

Nearby villages have contributed liberally to the pile, Chairman Morgan said. The aluminum will be hauled to Columbus within a few days.
